They Are Warlike Animals Cut Rate Campaigning Beware of "Babykins" Unlimited California

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Lloyd George called the Turks "warlike animals" and they disliked it. Kemal Pasha got the speech by wire and his friends suggest that he will start more fighting, presumably to prove that Turks are not fighting animals.

Lloyd George also told his crowd that the Turks are men that cannot be bluffed, "brave men," he called them. That ought to offset the "fighting animals" insult, especially as they are fighting animals. If they could think as well as they can fight, they'd frighten Europe. Better thinking is Europe's safety.

Ford cuts the price of his cars fifty dollars on all models, making the lowest price for any car at any time.

If that is Henry Ford's way of running for the presidency, it will prove a popular way. The people would like to see coal men, packers and landlords running for office on the same basis.

The Rev. Mr. Hall of New Jersey called his choir leader "dear Gypsy" and she called him "dear Babykins," in their excited correspondence. Recently they were found together, in the tall golden rod, he with a bullet in his head, she with two bullets and her throat cut, both dead.

Five thousand years ago, as the banks of the Nile, ladies and gentlemen were found killed, in the manner of the period, for calling each other "babykins" by Egyptian, but men and women never learn to keep away from such little names, and from each other.

Nobody knows who killed Gypsy and Babykins, but everybody guesses. If the law proves it, no one probably will be convicted. One force drives Babykins and Gypsy, another drives the unnamed person to the killing. The jury knows that the whole thing is beyond control of the triangle.

B. C. Forbes tells you something new and important about California and that "Golden Northwest." Nine years ago California produced only 10,000 bales of cotton, and Arizona less. In 1920 California, Arizona and the Imperial Valley in Mexico produced 250,000 bales. Los Angeles harbor shipped 14,000 bales in 1920, shipped 104,068 bales in 21, and will ship 150,000 bales this year. Sixty-six thousand bales went to Japan.

The long, dry growing season takes the boll weevil harmless in these regions. And of twelve and a half million acres good for cotton only 350,000 acres have been used so far. What will that crop be in years to come? And where can you set a limit to wealth possibilities of that part of America?

California goes at things in the right, modern way. While growers produce the cotton, Los Angeles provided a high density cotton compressor, working at the rate of a bale a minute. That is the way to meet foreign competition, with greater efficiency, bet-

WARNING NOTE TO JEWS ON ROCK

Missile Thrown in Window at Haverhill Barely Misses Woman

Haverhill, Oct. 18.—A rock, to which was tied a note of warning, was hurled through the window of the home of Alfred A. Phillips of No. 23 Hamilton avenue, Haverhill, today.

The note read:

Jews Not Wanted Here.
Leave Within 48 Hours.
K. K. K.
Don't Let the Police Know About This, or—Window.
Tar and Feathers.

Phillips promptly informed the police. He told Captain Marcus A. Sullivan, who came to investigate, that he ran to the street after the rock had been thrown, but could see nobody.

For some time, he said, he has seen evidence of a systematic persecution. A dozen times his ice-chest has been rifled. Last February a rock was thrown through his window. In others ways he has had trouble.

The Phillipses have lived in Haverhill for two years and bear an excellent reputation. They have one child, a boy of twelve years.

Hamilton avenue makes some pretensions to being exclusive and fashionable. The fact that Phillips, a Jew, lives in Hamilton avenue has aroused some resentment. Phillips is the owner of a cigar store on Essex street.

Mrs. Phillips was sitting in the parlor of her home, knitting, when a rock came through the window, crashing through the screen. The rock, larger than a fist, narrowly missed her head.

Her scream of fright brought her

EYES SHOW BOY IS GYPSY

Test Fails to Reveal Defects Named by Woman Who Claims Him as Son

Mrs. Clarence Smith of Dighton lost today in the test of the eyes of the "gypsy" boy of disputed parentage.

Mrs. Smith maintains that she is the mother of the lad known to her as Russell Smith, but to others as Robert Beede. She says her boy, stolen from her years ago, was operated on in infancy for slight crossing of the eyes and that a scar might still be discerned.

But Mrs. Eugene Choquette, who also claims motherhood of the lad, said her boy had no eye-crossing, nor operation, nor scar.

NO SIGN OF SCAR.

Examination of the boy's eyes at City Hospital today failed to reveal any scar or other indication of operation for eye-crossing.

This would seem to dispose of any claim that Mrs. Smith has to being the mother of this boy.

The eye test was arranged by the Boston American with Dr. E. W. Wilson, assistant superintendent of City Hospital, by permission of General Secretary Theodore Lothrop of the M. S. P. C. C.

The examination was made by Dr. L. Colby Rood of No. 419 Boylston street, visiting opthalmic surgeon of the hospital.

While waiting for the test the boy

RUSSIAN REDS BOMB WHITE TROOP TRAIN

Moscow, Oct. 18 (By the Associated Press)—Dispatches from Chita claim a series of successes for the Red Army of the Far Eastern Republic in its drive against the Whites along the Trans-Siberian Railway in the direction of Vladivostok.

Partisans of the Reds report they blew up General Kappell's troop train near Grodekov, 100 miles northwest of Vladivostok, on October 13, killing or wounding many soldiers.

The Whites are understood to be entrenching in the region of Nikolsk and Usuri, where they are bringing up ammunition and artillery in preparation for a stand.

LOVE DIARY OF SLAIN MINISTER

Pastor Describes His Burning Longing for Kisses of His Sweetheart Choir Singer

(Copyright, 1922, by the New York American. Reproduction in whole or part positively prohibited.)

New York, Oct. 18.—Twenty days of loneliness and emotional longing for Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills are described in the diary kept by the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall.

The American today begins publication of this significant heart picture of the clergyman's affection for the choir singer, with whom he was slain several weeks ago at New Brunswick, N. J.

The diary was written while the Rev. Mr. Hall was in Maine. He left for a vacation there with his wife July 31. He returned late in August.

The opening entry in the diary—written in pencil in a small, brown covered notebook—refers to a meeting tryst the pair had fulfilled as the Rev. Mr. Hall was leaving for Maine.

"Monday, July 31—Once on board the 'Calvin Austin'—Dearest, dear heart of mine, they were sweet moments we had together at this morning—but, oh, all so short—I am looking at you yet as you turned and walked down the gangway ton street. I started on electric hobile and met Mother at Jersey City and took her on her way to New York to meet my sister. The boat left at five—every moment I have been with you, dear heart, and every moment you are with me. Good night."

"Tuesday, August 1—First thought is of you, my dearest. Reached Boston at 7:30 o'clock, very hot—went shopping and in the afternoon went to the movies and saw Mary Miles Minter in a picture. Sent you, or rather, Daniel, a card from the State House—Hot and sultry all day—very cloudy at night. Left Boston at six and at nine ran into a fog, so

Discarded Husband Wants His Wife Declared Dead

New York, Oct. 18.—Thomas H. S. Reilly, whose belongings in 1906 were put out of his mother-in-law's home, she telling him to "get out and stay out," has asked the courts to declare his wife legally dead.

He seeks his liberty under the new law which provides that a husband or wife may apply for legal separation when he or she has lost sight of his or her mate for five years.

Reilly says he has made diligent search for five years and cannot find his wife, child or mother-in-law.

ADMITS WITNESS QUIZ

Hanover Trust Official Says He Sent Pizzy to Find Out Jury Testimony

Former Congressman William S. McNary, treasurer of the Hanover Trust Company, admitted that he had instructed Charles Pizzi, former manager of the Hanover's North End branch, to interview witnesses in the Special Grand Jury's investigation of the Hanover.

He admitted that he instructed Pizzi to ask the witnesses what they would testify.

He denied, however, that he instructed Pizzi to "line up" the witnesses.

These admissions were made when McNary was a witness in the secret hearing of the special jury, and were made public today by Attorney-General J. Weston Allen, from a transcript of the evidence taken at the time.

The hearing of the three Hanover officials charged with contempt of court following the discharge of the Special Grand Jury by Allen, because of alleged efforts to tamper with the jurors, began today before Judge Bishop in Supreme Criminal Court.

The third official charged with

CRASH SHOWERS WOMEN WITH GLASS

Women shoppers coming to Boston on a Cleveland one street car from Bowdoin square were frightened today when a furniture moving van collided with the car. The truck was owned and operated by Mac Franklin of No. 159 Chelsea street, East Boston. The crash took place at Marion and Bennington streets, East Boston. A sign on the front of the truck was torn loose and crashed through the windows on the right side of the car, showering glass and splinters over the terrified passengers.

contempt is Henry H. Chmielinski, former president of the Hanover.

The three men were charged by Allen with attempting to unduly influence the jurors of the special extraordinary body which had been formed at the request of the Attorney-General to investigate the cases of the Hanover Trust Company, the H. V. Greene enterprises, the Fondi case and other cases.

William J. Thompson and George E. Mears appeared as counsel for McNary. Chmielinski was represented by Attorney Fred M. J. Sheehan and Pizzi by John W. Corcoran. The first hour of the hearing was taken up by squabbles between counsel and the prosecution, which is being conducted by Attorney-General Allen and Assistant Attorney-General Albert Hurwitz.

At the opening of the hearing Chmielinski and his pretty young wife sat among the spectators, with Pizzi seated nearby. McNary sat inside the rail with his attorneys.

Among the witnesses sworn in were the following:

Miss Helen Sullivan of Cambridge, employed by McNary as stenographer in his offices at No. 53 State street.

State Officer Frank Held.

William E. Hingston, handwriting expert, who is to testify concerning the handwriting of some of the letters alleged to have been written to influence the jurors.

John H. Farley, clerk of the court, who acted as stenographer during the grand jury hearing.

Farley was the first to go on the stand. It appeared to be the purpose of Mr. Allen to get him to read his abstract of the testimony in which Mr. McNary figured. At the suggestion of Attorney Thompson, the stenographer was excused and the stenographic notes were turned over to Mr. Allen, so that he could read them himself.

GERALDINE SHOE.

Twelve-year-old girl knocked down by autoist who fled. But the police have his number.

TRACE AUTO THAT INJURED GIRL

An autoist ran down Geraldine Shoe, twelve years old, of No. 24 Queensbury street, Back Bay, and Police Officer Dunsford arrived in time to take what he believes to have been the number of the car. The accident occurred in front of the girl's home. She was found to be suffering from many bruises by Dr. Arthur Jones of No. 629 Newbury street.

The number taken by Dunsford was broadcasted to all stations.

This morning a car with that number was found parked in the Elm Hill garage, Roxbury, under the name of Clark.

PROBES DEATH OF SCHLATTER

because of his eccentricities. The last time he attracted nation wide attention was in July, 1921, when he disappeared from his home at Anisquam, near Gloucester. He was found a month later in Montreal.

Schlatter died at St. Louis in a rooming house. A woman said to have been in attendance at his death is being sought by the police, and a coroner's inquest has been ordered to determine the cause of death. The woman being sought is said to have posed as the aged healer's nurse.

CHARGES FOUL PLAY.

The wife, who arrived the day following the death of her husband, told the police she was positive he had met with foul play.

She said she had been waiting for him in Kansas City, whence they planned to go to Salt Lake City, where Schlatter was to enter the Mormon church. Schlatter claimed an acquaintance with the late John Alexander Dowie, and in 1916 started out on a quest of $600,000,000 in gold he thought to be buried in Honduras.

He got the tip about the gold, he alleged at the time, from Mr. Dowie himself, before that gentleman died. From Mr. Dowie he got the charts showing where the treasure was located.

The landlady at the rooming house where Schlatter was found dead said the mysterious woman who was with him gave her name as Mrs. Madeline Black. On one occasion, the landlady told the police, the woman said she was Mrs. Schlatter.

PICTURESQUE CAREER.

A death certificate was withheld until the coroner's jury could determine the cause of death.

Schlatter attracted wide attention in 1895 by a series of alleged miraculous cures in Denver. He became known then as "The Miracle Man" and "The Healer." He won national publicity on one occasion as the man who cured the mother of President McKinley.

In relating his story to the crowds who listened to his preachments, he told how, as a blind cobbler, his sight was restored through the prayers of his mother.

In 1892, he related, Christ appeared to him in a vision as he sat in his cobbler's shop, and told him his mission as a healer. He went to Albuquerque, N. M., and performed a cure on a child said to have been incurably afflicted.

At the meetings presided over by the healer, he blessed handkerchiefs and tokens and gave them to his followers.

Frequently he retired to the mountains. He was pictured as preaching to thousands from the hills in the Rocky Mountains where multitudes were blessed and healed. On these occasions he wore a long, flowing beard and was attired in black robes.

After numerous disappearances he dropped out of sight and the St. Louis police received several telegrams from his wife asking aid in searching for him.

HUNT DRIVER WHOSE CAR HURT CYCLIST

The police today began a search for the driver of a taxi, owned by Manuel Garcia, of No. 80 West Dedham street, who they allege fled from Broadway and Shawmut avenue after knocking a motorcyclist from his machine, seriously injuring him. John Davey, the victim, thirty-two years old, of No. 28 Albion place, cut, bruised and unconscious, was taken to City Hospital.

ONLY 18 HORSES REMAIN IN ARMY TEST

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 18.—The horses competing in the annual 300-mile endurance test to determine the type most suitable for army mounts was further reduced today at the start of the third sixty-mile run to St. Albans. Cascade, a Morgan gelding, was withdrawn because of stiffness and fatigue. John Gowette, riding Major S., vearled by the first two days, was replaced by Captain Tate of Fort Ethan Allen.

In the cavalcade of 18 that swept down the roads the Morgans Fairlady and Gladstone, the cross-bred Arab Rustem Bey, Toute Belle, an Anglo-Arab, and Pathfinder, a thoroughbred, seemed to have most spirit and to have stood the test.

MYSTERY IN MURDER OF WOMAN, AGED 72

Barnevia, N. Y., Oct. 18.—"This is the strangest murder the authorities of Genesee County have been confronted with," announced District Attorney Kelly today, following an autopsy on the body of Miss Francis Kimball, seventy-two years old, who was slain in the cellar of her home in Bethany. The body was found by Charles Speed, a neighbor, member of a searching party. No motive for the crime has been found. Telephone wires running into the house were found cut.

ter machinery. Dear brains can beat cheap labor.

Prosecutors want to jail a publisher for publishing the "Satyricon" of Petronius, and they probably ought to succeed. "Is the work an accepted classic of literary and historical value?" is not the real question.

"Why does the publisher put out the book?" is the question. Is the book published because of its value, or because of its indecencies? Rabelais is a writer among the dozen greatest of all, yet publishing his works indiscriminately, and expurgated, would be criminal. All that is great in any book can be preserved with elimination of parts unfit for modern general distribution, and courts should so decide.

A gentleman, seventy years old, threw a stone at a hen in his front yard and dropped dead. We know that the trouble was with his heart, and that old gentlemen should neither get angry nor strain themselves throwing stones. Once it would have been thought that a just, but angry, destiny had punished him for trying to kill the harmless chicken. We are learning slowly.

Mr. Billy Miske, who made a good living as a prize fighter, but has now entered the sere and yellow of prize fighting, which comes in the late twenties, wants to "come back." He says he is determined to fight Jack Dempsey and prove that he is as good as he ever was. But he won't do it, can't do it. Fighting depends on the speed with which nerves running from brain to fists and feet carry their orders. Nerves once injured are injured forever. No renewal of nerve tissue.

Boy Asks $10,000 Because He Can't Smile

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Nine-year-old Joe Bevilacqua is asking a jury in county court to award him $10,000 because he never again can smile.

The boy was in an automobile accident, the car in which he was riding being demolished by a truck. His face was cut by flying glass, and he lost control of the facial muscles.

EPISCOPALIANS IN NEW CHURCH UNION

New York, Oct. 18.—The formation, by a group of Episcopal clergymen of the modern churchmen's union in America to "promote a new evangelism among the unchurched classes," was announced here today. Dr. Roland Cotton Smith, rector emeritus of St. John's Church, Washington, D. C., is the first president. The members are loyal churchmen anxious to spread the teachings of Jesus Christ in accordance with the development of modern civilization. "Freedom of thought will be encouraged," said the Rev. G. Monroe Royce. "We are especially anxious to have the young man, leaving college, come to church where we will find a common ground for thought."

Among the vice-presidents elected are: The Rev. Elwood Worcester of Boston, and the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, New York City, formerly of Boston.

ROCKEFELLER, JR., GOES TO SANITARIUM

Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 18.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., today began a rest cure in a sanitarium, following his arrival last night. He refused to discuss his reason for seeking treatment. The financier had no appearance of illness.

When asked who, in his opinion, is the richest man in the world, Mr. Rockefeller replied:

"You can answer that question as well as I can. I don't know of any way to find out."

WASTE PAPER SAVES 300,000 TIMBER ACRES

Chicago, Oct. 18.—More than 300,000 acres of timber in the United States have been preserved this year by the use of waste paper in the manufacture of new, Grellet Collins, president of the Book Paper Manufacturers' Association, told the members here today.

Using good pulp wood land as an example, it can be said that the use of 61 tons of waste paper is equal to saving of one acre of timber from devastation," he said. "The paper industry will use in 1922 nearly two million tons of waste paper."

BANDIT WILSON, 2 COMPANIONS, RECAPTURED

Los Angeles, Oct. 18.—Herbert Wilson, former evangelist, mail bandit and convicted murderer; Adam Blaszyk, convicted murderer, and Guido Spignola, convicted robber, who broke jail yesterday, were recaptured today without a struggle in the home of a former convict.

The fugitives were taken in a house not far from where they abandoned the automobile they had stolen. Sheriff William I. Traeger and a posse of deputies surrounded the residence.

The capture resulted from the use of plans Wilson had formulated for concealment after the attempted break last April, which was frustrated by sheriff's deputies and in which Herbert Cox, partner of Wilson, was killed. Wilson was convicted of murder as a result. The three who escaped yesterday were captured in the place where they had planned to hide last April.

Wilson's first question was concerning the condition of Turnkey Henry Furrier, who was knocked unconscious in the break yesterday morning.

MISS MARGARET DRAPER SUES HER ROYAL ITALIAN HUSBAND

DESERTED, SAYS RICH WIFE

Society Favorite Declares She Doesn't Know Where Her Mate Has Gone

Princess Andrea Boncompagni, formerly Miss Margaret Preston Draper of Boston, has filed suit for divorce from her royal husband, Prince Boncompagni, in Paris, according to word received in Boston by friends of the Princess.

The former Boston and Washington society favorite declares that her prince has abandoned her, and says that she does not even know where he is at present.

A preliminary effort to patch up the marital differences of the royal pair has failed, her friends say.

While a decree has not been granted, the proceedings have been concluded before a Paris divorce court. It is understood the Prince has given the Prince six more months in which to come back and make amends. If he does not return to her by that time the Princess will move for a final decree and another romance between American wealth and a royal title will have gone on the matrimonial rocks.

HEIRESS TO MILLIONS.

Princess Boncompagni is the daughter of General William F. Draper and a niece of former Governor Eben S. Draper of Massachusetts. She was long considered the wealthiest girl in Massachusetts. She is heir to the major portion of the $12,000,000 estate left by her father.

Before her marriage to the Prince, Miss Draper was considered one of the most popular girls in Massachusetts society circles. She was also one of the favorites in Washington society, where she was "introduced" in 1909 at a cotillion in the Draper residence. At that time she was eighteen years old. The affair was one that was talked about in Washington society for weeks because of its brilliance.

SOUGHT BY ROYALTY.

Following her Washington debut Miss Draper was showered with invitations. Princes and diplomats of foreign countries hurled themselves at the feet of the popular young heiress.

In the midst of this dizzy whirl her father died and she withdrew from society and went into seclusion. Despite this she was considered one of the biggest matrimonial "catches" of the country.

A year after going into seclusion she went to England and was presented at the court of St. James. Again she became society favorite. British royalty was captivated by the charming young American girl. Through it all her name was never linked with that of any of her numerous suitors.

Then, in 1913, it was reported that she was engaged to the dashing Count de la Tour d'Auvergne. This report died a natural death in a short while. Then came the rumor that she was to marry Prince Ludovico of Rome.

WED IN WASHINGTON.

Came the war and Prince Boncompagni became a hero. He was given leave of absence in 1916 and came to America. The engagement of the pair was announced and they were married at the Draper residence in Washington. The wedding was the biggest event of the 1916 season at the capital.

The couple went to Italy to live at the palace of the Prince. All was thought well between the couple and friends were shocked today when they learned of the separation and the divorce proceedings in Paris.

TEST INDICATES BOY IS GYPSY

played his usual "kid" pranks, racing along the corridors and getting into everything possible. He quieted a bit for a piece of gum and then was amused with a toy automobile and two toy chickens a girl clerk gave him.

After a five-minute test Dr. Rood said that, so far as he could determine, there was no scar or sign of a scar and no indication of present or past crossing of the eyes. But he took the boy then to the eye clinic in the out-patient department of the institution for final test.

The answer this time was the same, only more specific and scientific. The clinical examination showed "orthophoria" or "natural balance" of the eyes. The test disclosed nothing whatever wrong with either of the mischievous orbs of the boy. Nor was there any discernible scar or other sign of an operation in infancy or any later period.

Chouette is meanwhile in the New Bedford jail, awaiting trial next Monday on the charge of kidnaping Mrs. Smith's son. His wife, who is staying in Wrentham, has retained an attorney, and is prepared to introduce four women who will identify the boy as her son.

Relatives of Chouette's second wife, whom he divorced before he married his present wife, declare that he was in Montana at the time Mrs. Smith's son was kidnapped. Mrs. Chouette, who is practically without funds, is again to become a mother in about six weeks, and is prepared to ask aid of her husband's relatives.

Ku Klux Klan Has Invaded Portland

Portland, Me., Oct. 18.—The "Ku Klux Klan" is organized in Portland and Westbrook, with fifty members. Portland is the State headquarters, another branch being situation in Bangor, according to Roger F. Cressy of No. 84 Grant street, who said that he was a member of the order. Mr. Cressy declined to divulge the names of any other members of the organization or of any of the officers.

"There is a klan in Portland," he said.

"In Bangor, the work of organizing started earlier than it did here, and as a result it has progressed further. Portland is the headquarters for the State. The membership is increasing rapidly in nearly every State, the increase in the country being at the rate of about 1,000 members a day."

WINS BRIDE AFTER YEARS OF COAXING

New York, Oct. 18. — Mr. and Mrs. Edgar A. Iglehart are on their honeymoon at Capri. When Mrs. Iglehart was Aline Ellis, and Mr. Iglehart wanted to marry her, she had to be coaxed.

It developed that Mr. Iglehart is one of the best coaxers in the United States. He went to Europe and coaxed her by mail and cable. The "coaxing" might have gone on indefinitely if the relatives hadn't interfered. When dad and mother said "no," then Miss Ellis decided she wanted to get married after all.

CLOSE NET ON 2 SUSPECTS IN HALL MURDER

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 18.—Officials conducting the investigation into the murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, rector of the Episcopal Church of St. John the Evangelist, and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, on September 14, were at the Court House today.

While newspapermen again were barred from the Court House, it was understood that Prosecutor Beekman of Somerset County and his associates began at once consideration of stenographic copies of statements taken from relatives of the slain rector, including those of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, his widow, and her two brothers, Henry and Willis Stevens.

None of the officials or detectives would offer any prediction as to what may be expected today. Crowds of curious attracted there by persistent rumors that two or more arrests may be expected at any time, gathered about the Court House to await developments.

BORN IN RUSSIA, BOY HAILS "MISS LIBERTY"

New York, Oct. 18.—"Bill" Rennick, two, gazed up at the Statue of Liberty and cheered loudly.

Other passengers aboard the steamer Celtic wondered.

But Bill didn't care a rip. He was seeing his own country for the first time, and who would not cheer under those conditions.

Bill stood right up on the highest point of the ship he could get to and yelled and yelled as his mother, Mrs. Henry L. Rennick, explained that he was coming home.

Bill was born in Moscow. Since then, or rather, ever since he could just begin to understand what his daddy and his mother were saying, he heard daily of "God's country" where some day he would go to a real, honest-to-goodness home. Mrs. Rennick and Bill both say he's 100 per cent. American, even if born in a foreign land.

FEDERAL EXPENSES TAKE DROP THIS YEAR

Washington, Oct. 18.—Government expenses so far this fiscal year have been kept within government income, despite treasury predictions of a large deficit before June 30 next. Treasury receipts up to October 11 were announced today as amounting to $988,000,000 and expenditures $850,000,000.

General expenditures for the administrative branch of the government dropped about $50,000,000. Government payments on account of both the railroads and the Shipping Board show expenditures of only $14,000,000, a decrease of about $40,000,000. Payments to the railroads have amounted to $25,000,000, about $5,000,000 less than last year.

STOCK AND BUILDINGS GO IN $5,200 FIRE

Thompsonville, Ct., Oct. 18.—Damage of approximately $25,000 was caused by fire which destroyed farm buildings belonging to George H. Poole on Elm street. The roof of the house, containing fifteen rooms and considered one of the most modern farmhouses in the town, was burned off and the rear part and ells destroyed.

The large stock barn, close to the dwelling, was destroyed, with seven cows, one heifer, five horses, a mule, sixty tons of hay, farming tools and equipment. A large carriage shed, poultry houses, 125 feet in length, a two-car garage and several smaller connecting buildings also were a total loss. A large silo was reduced to ashes.

FIVE KILLED IN TRAIN-AUTO CRASHES

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Five persons, one a woman, were killed in train-automobile crashes near here today. A train smashed into a taxicab near Glenview. The chauffeur was killed outright and two passengers were burned to death in the explosion that followed. A Baltimore & Ohio train wrecked a motor truck near Blue Island, killing Carle Gobert and Ira Furry.

GIRL WHO GAVE UP $100,000 WANTS TWINS

By HAROLD R. RALL.

A happy home, a contented and loving husband and babies —these are the things that Mrs. Josephine Kryl White, wife of Paul Taylor White, a composer of Boston, puts before a career and wealth.

Just to prove that she prefers a husband and love rather than money and a career Mrs. White has given up $100,000. And furthermore, she says she is glad she did it and is "very, very happy."

Mrs. White is the daughter of Bohumir Kryl, of Chicago, director of the famous Kryl Band. Kryl is not only a great musician; he is a millionaire and a noted art collector —and ambitious as far as his daughters are concerned. He wanted Josephine and her sister, Maria, to have a career. He decided that they could not have it if they thought of marriage. To prevent matrimony he has never allowed them to entertain a man in the Kryl home. He further offered each of the girls $100,000 at the age of thirty years if they were still unmarried.

FLOUTS FORTUNE.

"I do not care about the old $100,000," she told the Boston American reporter. "Of course it would come in handy now to help us set up our new home. But we can get along without it. We are young. We are in love. We are happy. What more could we ask?

"I met Paul four years ago in Cincinnati. I was studying violin under that daring teacher and violinist, Ysaye. Paul was studying with him, too. We fell in love almost immediately. Soon we dreamed our dreams of a little nest all our own.

"Father was furious. He wanted me to go on and be a great violinist and have a career. He forbade such a thing as marriage. Neither my sister nor I were allowed to have a man in the house.

"Well, Paul and I saw a lot of each other after that, just the same. Every Winter he came to Cincinnati and so did I. We decided to marry about a year ago. But my father had promised me $100,000 if I would wait until I was 25 years old. I thought he meant it, and we waited until I was twenty-five. Then the money did not come, but he said he would give me it when I was thirty—if still unmarried.

FATHER IS FURIOUS.

"I decided then that I would not wait. We set June, of this year as the wedding date. I foolishly left some letters where my father found them and the wedding was all off. Then we decided on September 4, but my sister let the secret out and the guard was doubled over me.

"In desperation Paul called me on the telephone from Boston and we agreed to marry at once. He came on to Chicago and I sneaked out of the house and drove down to the station and met him in my car. We rushed to the City Hall and were married fifteen minutes after he had arrived from Boston.

"Now Paul will go on and study and teach and write music and be a success. I shall not stop studying, but my home will have to come first.

"What I really want now more than any career is babies. Oh, I hope I have twins.

London, Oct. 18.—Into the wilds of South America goes a fair, but by no means frail, London girl in quest of romance, adventure, and a diamond mine. She is Miss Given Richardson. She will head a large expedition that expects to penetrate far into the Andes in its search for the mine. A lover of adventure, but no scatter-brain rainbow chaser, is this modern girl, who says her goal is a very definite one.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL IN NEED OF FUNDS

Contributions of any size are urgently needed at the Children's Hospital on Longwood avenue, Back Bay. An appeal is being made for $160,000 additional annual revenue for the institution. "Fifty dollars may save the life of a child," is the slogan of those in charge of the drive.

LABOR LEADER DIES AT CONVENTION

Springfield, Oct. 18.—John J. Corrigan, business agent of the Jersey City, N. J., local of the Bricklayers', Masons' and Plasterers' International Union, and a delegate to the biennial convention here, died today in a hospital of pneumonia. The convention, now in its second week, adjourned at 10 o'clock, as a mark of respect to Mr. Corrigan and the 300 delegates marched to an undertaking parlor to view the body.

The fine was reduced to $20 and suspended. Milbery, who lives at No. 70 Garfield avenue, Revere, will motorcycle with his bride to California and they will stay there.

PRODUCE 47,152 CARS OF COAL IN ONE DAY

Washington, Oct. 18.—Coal production on Monday reached a new high peak according to reports to the American Railway Association, which placed the day's bituminous output at 47,281 cars or about 2,050,000 tons. This has been exceeded only once in recent years, on December 30, 1920, when the output was 47,000 cars. Anthracite production Monday dropped slightly, 5,051 carloads being turned over to the railroads as compared with an average of more than 6,000 in recent weeks.

KLAN CAUSES FRICTION IN LEGION

By HERBERT B. MAYER, Universal Staff Correspondent.

New Orleans, Oct. 18.—For the first time since its organization the question of religion has entered the discussions and internal policies of the American Legion, now in convention here.

Colonel William Deegan, of New York, apparently the leading figure in the discussion of the selection for the next national commander of the organization, is a Catholic. A large part of the opposition which has been aroused to his selection comes from this fact, but notwithstanding religious difference, the entire New York delegation is solid for him.

Not only in this respect but also upon other questions the dangerous questions of differences of belief has come into the Legion councils.

KU KLUX INVOLVED.

One of the most sinister of these discussions has revolved around the "Ku Klux Klan," its proponents and opponents. Another bone of contention is whether or not the Legion will pass resolutions calling for the amendment of the prohibition legislation to permit the sale of light wines and beers.

So far as the discussions are concerned regarding the questions of religion and politics, every effort is being made by the leaders of the discussions to keep the matters concerned in purely an academic form. Indeed, the question of religious differences has not been brought out in any way publicly, but behind the scenes it is being used largely for and against prohibition candidates.

Y. D. IN PARADE.

All reparations were concluded for the great parade which will mark the third day of the convention today. The parade will be more than five miles long.

Prominent in the parade will be the Yankee Division whose members were overjoyed by the arrival of the Providence, R. I., band just in time to participate. Incidentally, the blue overseas cap, trimmed with gold, is making one of the costume hits of the convention.

One of the features of the convention was the killing in committee of a resolution which had been framed for asking the removal of Brigadier General C. E. Sawyer, President Harding's physician, from control of the treatment of the wounded and disabled. The change of plan was brought about by an address by Colonel A. A. Sprague of Chicago, chairman of the Rehabilitation Committee, who said that General Sawyer had agreed to follow the legion's plan for the treatment of the service men.

FORMER PRIVATE IS RAISED TO GENERAL

Washington, Oct. 18.—Another former private in the ranks is to be raised to the grade of general officer in the army. Secretary Weeks today announced the selection of Colonel Albert C. Dalton, quartermaster corps, as assistant to the quartermaster-general with the grade of brigadier-general. He will succeed General Charles R. Krauthoff, also formerly an enlisted man.

General Dalton enlisted in the regular army in 1889 and served both as a corporal and a sergeant before being made a second lieutenant in 1895. As an infantry officer he participated in the campaigns against the Sioux Indians and in the Santiago campaign during the Spanish-American War.

BLUENOSE AND FORD GET LAST TUNING UP

Gloucester, Oct. 18.—The Canadian schooner Bluenose, here to defend her honors as champion of the North Atlantic fishing fleets, went on the marine railway today for a final overhauling preparatory to the first race of the championship series on Saturday.

The Gloucesterman Henry Ford, the challenger, was also given attention. Work was begun on bending a new mainsail, after which Captain Clarion Mortimer said he might take his schooner for a trial spin. The Ford will probably go on the ways tomorrow for her last inspection.

The hull of the Bluenose was to be painted and scraped today.

BRIGHTON BOY TIED TO TREE AND ROBBED

Maxey Molway, fifteen years of age, of No. 29 Mount Vernon avenue, Brighton, reported to the police of Brighton today that two young men, one carrying a gun, held him up near his home, took him into a woodlot, tied him to a tree and robbed him of $20.

The lad, he told the police, succeeded in removing the handkerchief placed in his mouth, and his cries brought his sister from the house. She released him.

Molway works for the Economy Grocery Company of No. 381 Washington street, Brighton, and was on his way home from making a C. O. D. delivery when he was attacked, he says. He could not identify his assailants, he says.

BELA FRIEDLIENDROVA.

Bela Friedliendrova, a former student of the famous Prague University, is one of five girls sent to America for further instruction by the Minister of Education of Czecho-Slovakia, her native country. She is now at Wellesley, where she is taking a course in hygiene, with extra work in economics and philosophy.

The other girls sent with her went to Smith, Mt. Holyoke and Vassar. Miss Friedliendrova declares she likes America, "because everything is so modern, practical and clear. Prague is so old, and much more serious." She adds that she feels much more at ease here, as the Americans are "much more friendly."

BRITISH FORBID TURK PARADE IN THE CAPITAL

Constantinople, Oct. 18 (By the Associated Press).—The British authorities here, in the interest of public safety, have declined to permit the Turkish Nationalist Gendarmeris to march through Constantinople today, as the Turks had planned. The order produced keen disappointment among the exuberant Turkish population which had made preparations on a vast scale to welcome the Kemalists.

Americans Aid 28,000 Greeks in Thrace

Rodosto, Thrace, Oct. 18. (By the Associated Press).—This town has become a jumping-off place in the Greek evacuation of Eastern Thrace. Twenty-eight thousand panic-stricken refugees are gathered here, all dominated by the same fear of the Turk that swayed the refugee crowds in Smyrna three weeks ago.

Everybody believes the Turks are almost at the door, and nothing can reassure them. The general belief is that the Kemalists will arrive simultaneously with the British troops of occupation, and every refugee hopes to put a long stretch of water between himself and Rodosto before that event.

The whole town and all its extra population have abandoned any pretence of performing normal duties and have gathered along the gravel beaches, waiting nervously for the ships which do not come.

All the shops, even the bakeries, are closed and their owners are with the crowds around the narrow planked quay. The government yesterday discontinued its bread ration, but an American relief station under Colonel Stephen E. Lowe of St. Louis, took over the burden, pending the arrival of British supplies.

HINT POOR FABRIC CAUSED WRECK

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 18.—A board of inquiry today sought causes of the explosion which destroyed the army dirigible C-2 just as it was starting with eleven passengers on an exhibition flight.

Major H. A. Strauss, commander of the C-2, was expected to testify to-day that the accident was caused by fabric pulling out of the envelope as the dirigible started from the Brooks Field hangar. This, in the opinion of some officers, implies that the fabric was not up to standard.

WORLD TO RECEIVE BENEFIT OF GREAT WAR DISCOVERY

Important Discovery Made By Two Distinguished Scientists of Rockefeller Institute Which Accomplished Phenomenal Results in the Allied Hospitals Has Been So Perfected That It Is Now Available For Use in the Home.

WILL PROVIDE HUMANITY WITH MIGHTY DEFENCE AGAINST INFECTION AND DISEASE

Original Discovery, The Carrel-Dakin Solution, Universally Conceded to Be Most Important Advance in Field of Medicine Since the Discovery of Anaesthesia; Saved Lives of Hundreds of Thousands of Desperately Wounded Men.

A new and remarkable discovery has been made.

It is a discovery that will be of a unlimited usefulness in our daily lives, and one which will rank with other epoch-making achievements of modern times.

This discovery was born of the great World War—the most terrible war in all history, in which millions of men perished and billions of dollars worth of property was utterly destroyed.

The world is now taking stock. It knows its losses have been staggering. Were they any gains?

During the years of war, science was concentrated in an effort to find weapons and methods for the destruction of human life; more efficient manufacture and transportation of things that gave men the power to kill had been the chief aim of civilization, locked in a death struggle.

The World's Greatest Clinic

Opposed to this effort to destroy was a comparatively small body of men and women whose every thought and act was devoted to the preservation of human life. Surgeons, physicians and nurses were the soldiers that the science of medicine called to the colors. They went forward into battle not to kill, but to save; and in the greatest clinic the world has ever known they learned new methods of surgery and healing that will be of incalculable benefit to mankind.

It should give Americans a thrill of pride to know that the greatest of all advances in medical science, made as a result of the war, was accomplished through the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, New York City, in response to the imperative demand of Allied surgeons for an antiseptic to combat infection.

Ask a French or English surgeon, who served in the war hospitals of his country, about the Carrel-Dakin solution. "Marvelous!" he will tell you. "It saved hundreds of thousands of our wounded. The greatest discovery of the war."

Surgeons Were Powerless

This is what the French and British have to say of this discovery, which came to the aid of the Allied war hospitals when stench and corruption filled every ward, as wound infections, such as had never been dreamed of, raged unchecked.

It is a well-known fact that medical science had nothing when war was declared that would effectively destroy established infection. All the known antiseptics, including carbolic acid, bichloride of mercury, silver nitrate, iodine and a host of mild solutions, were found to be inefficient, inadequate and wholly undependable.

Limited to these pitifully ineffective antiseptics, French and English surgeons attempted to meet the infection produced by modern gunfire: but high-powered bullets and high explosive shells carried a myriad particles of germ-laden dirt deep into the lacerating wounds which they produced.

The pollu held at the Marne; held again at Verdun. The English and Canadians stood fast at Ypres, but their surgeons and nurses were being fatally hit by a more insidious foe than German shock troops. Infection, unbelievable infection, was beating them. A man wounded on Saturday would be a mass of corruption on Monday and would die within the week.

Small wonder that, handicapped as they were by ineffective, inadequate antiseptic, malignant infection threatened to overwhelm the Allied surgeons!

Small wonder that death from infection was claiming at least seventy per cent. of the wounded.

Small wonder that the Allied surgeons, appalled by living putrefaction and the horror of it all, sent out the cry: "Find oh! find us something that will check this fearful infection! We are helpless. It must be conquered."

Among those who heard the call were two distinguished scientists of the Rockefeller Institute. Summoned by the Institute, they went to work. They tested and tried every known antiseptic principle, some two hundred or more, and rejected them all. One experimented day and night, for every hour was precious, at first in the laboratory at Rennion Hospital, Paris, and later at Military Hospital No. 21, Compeigne, and one day [illegible] announcement: "We think we have what you want," they said. "Try it and see."

Surgery Revolutionized

The surgeons of the Allied armies tried it and saw. They saw that previous surgical methods were revolutionized. Here was a real antiseptic at last that could be used constantly in the deepest wounds, that would destroy germs like fire, and yet possessed extraordinary healing powers.

"It is Marvelous!" exclaimed the surgeon-general of the French army, as the new antiseptic came to him from the war hospitals of France, telling of the marvelous results of the thankful echo of the British medical staff.

This "magic fluid" revolutionized almost overnight the surgical practice of centuries. It conquered infection in the war hospitals and saved the lives of hundreds of thousands of desperately wounded men.

This solution was so powerful that its application to a wound, sore, burn or any break of the skin, destroyed infection promptly, and accomplished this wonder without injuring the tissues in the slightest degree.

"It is the most remarkable of all antiseptics!"

But why is it remarkable?

It is remarkable because its use reduced mortality from infection among wounded soldiers from seventy per cent to a negligible number!

It is remarkable because it was so sure and dependable that surgeons were able to foretell almost to a day, with mathematical precision, when a seemingly mortal wound would be healed and when the injured soldier could return to the firing line in perfect health!

It is remarkable because its use in war hospitals checked infection, reduced amputations seventy per cent, healed wounds in from one-third to one-half the time ordinarily required, and sent a constant stream of fully restored men back to the firing line, who otherwise would have slept in soldiers' graves or carried empty sleeves or worn cork legs, bitter but eloquent reminders of the inadequacy and insufficiency of the then prevailing methods.

It is remarkable because, according to standard laboratory tests, it is more than twice the germicidal power of pure carbolic acid, yet is non-poisonous.

It is remarkable because, in addition to its germ-destroying efficiency, it is an extraordinary healing agent, actually promoting tissue growth!

It is remarkable because its use in hospitals and in civil surgery has demonstrated that it alone fulfills the requirements of an ideal antiseptic!

It was inevitable that this remarkable discovery would arouse the civilized world, and become the subject of widespread comment.

Countless Lives Saved

The sentiment of the scientific and medical journals, magazines and newspapers was summarized in The Literary Digest, April 14, 1917:

"Countless lives have been saved, amputations have been avoided, wounds have healed in half or even a third of the time ordinarily required, by the use of the new Carrel-Dakin treatment of infected surgical cases."

According to LaNature (Paris) the Carrel-Dakin method has been proclaimed the "greatest surgical discovery since the days of Lister."

And now how can the world best profit by the biggest single asset of the war? Can this powerful though non-poisonous antiseptic be placed in the home ready for instant use? Until recently it could not, for the following reason: The Carrel-Dakin solution is unstable. In other words, it will not "keep." It must be freshly made just before using. The preparation of it is both delicate and complicated. This means that its use is restricted to hospitals and the medical profession for whom it is prepared by laboratory methods.

Since its discovery, however, some six years ago, chemists have been experimenting earnestly in an effort to stabilize the Carrel-Dakin solution. At last they have succeeded. Not only have they stabilized it but they have concentrated it. This means that Zonite, as the new preparation is called, will not only keep indefinitely but can be put up in comparatively small containers ready for immediate use. The result is this: every household in the world can be guarded against infection and contagion by an antiseptic that not only is harmless and non-poisonous but when subjected to standard laboratory tests for disinfectants shows more than twice the germicidal power of pure carbolic acid.

The days of poisons in the home are past. Carbolic acid, bichloride of mercury, all deadly things of the sort must go. Zonite will do much more than any of them without any of their attendant dangers.

Notice to Physicians:

Zonite, with an equal amount of water, makes a Carrel-Dakin solution. No testing required. Zonite has distinct advantages over the Carrel-Dakin fluid. It is stable, concentrated and ready for immediate use.

FACTS ABOUT ZONITE

1. Zonite is a concentrated, stabilized and perfected form of the Carrel-Dakin solution.

2. The Carrel-Dakin solution is the celebrated antiseptic discovered by two eminent scientists of the Rockefeller Institute of New York City, which accomplished such phenomenal results in the hospitals of the Allied armies during the World War.

3. It is a matter of history that this discovery revolutionized war surgery and saved the lives of hundreds of thousands of desperately wounded men.

4. The Carrel-Dakin solution was adopted and used almost exclusively by the surgeons of the Allied armies after over 200 other antiseptic principles had been tried, and found inefficient, undependable and wholly unsatisfactory.

5. The Carrel-Dakin solution has been adopted and is in universal daily use by the medical profession throughout the entire civilized world.

6. It is universally conceded that the discovery of this antiseptic represents the most important advance made by medical science since the discovery of anaesthesia.

7. The use of the Carrel-Dakin solution has heretofore been limited to the medical profession and to hospitals because it is unstable. It will not keep for more than a very limited time even under the most favorable conditions. It has to be freshly made at frequent intervals by laboratory methods and its preparation is both delicate and complicated.

8. After years of earnest work and scientific research chemists have succeeded in stabilizing the Carrel-Dakin solution. They have not only stabilized it so that it will keep its strength almost indefinitely, but they have perfected and concentrated it as well. This means that humanity will at last receive the benefits of this marvelous scientific discovery and that Zonite will be in the home, in the factory, and on the farm what the Carrel-Dakin solution has been to the medical profession and in the hospital.

9. Zonite, as this new product is called, has 2.25 times the germicidal power of pure carbolic acid. It is from 40 to 100 times as powerful as the mild, pleasant-tasting or foaming antiseptics now in general use by the public.

10. Zonite is non-poisonous and will rid the home of deadly poisons which have cost the world hundreds of thousands of useful lives.

11. Zonite is non-caustic and non-irritating, and properly used will not injure the most delicate tissue or membrane. On the other hand, it actually promotes tissue growth and is probably the most efficient healing agent known to materia medica.

12. The chemical term for the active principle of the Carrel-Dakin solution is $NaOCl$. The chemical term for the active principle of Zonite is $HOCl$. The physical and chemical properties of the two are practically the same and when diluted to equal concentration accomplish like results.

WHAT LEADING PUBLICATIONS SAY ABOUT THE DISCOVERY

Remarkable War-Time Achievement Heralded Throughout Civilized World as One of Greatest Discoveries of Age.

That the discovery of the Carrel-Dakin solution is regarded as one of the most important events in the world's history is conclusively proven by the fact that leading magazines, medical and scientific journals and daily newspapers everywhere have devoted many columns of space to the subject.

Lack of space prevents the publication of any great number of these artic,esi but a few extracts are reproduced below:

Literary Digest: "Countless lives have been saved, amputations have been avoided, wounds have been healed in half or even a third of the time ordinarily required by the use of the new Carrel-Dakin treatment of infected wounds. It is, therefore, gratifying to know that the inventors of this new technique are coming to this country to make it available here and to teach it to American surgeons. Dr. Alexis Carrel was formerly in the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in New York before he entered the French service, and his return on special furlough to set up a hospital specially equipped for the application of the Institute is especially appropriate, according to an article in LaNature (Paris), the Carrel-Dakin method has been spoken of as the greatest surgical discovery since the days of Lister. The basic idea seems to be that as practically all wounds in war become at least slightly infected, the most important thing is to destroy the infection by antiseptics rather than merely to keep out infection by antiseptic treatments."

La Nature (Paris): "Greatest medical triumphs since the days of Lister."

Collier's Weekly said, in part: "Today, thanks to Lister and Carrel-Dakin's tireless efforts, an acknowledged revolution has been wrought in the treatment of infection . . . The specter of the battle front is being brought into our everyday life, with antiseptic treatments. The consequences of incalculable good."

From the Review of Reviews we read: "It is admitted that in the recent war infection was more malignant than ever before . . . The only efficient antiseptic found was that which was employed with great success by Doctors Dakin and Carrel, and which for war work deserves, and a permanent gain for humanity."

From the New York Times: "The distinctive feature of this Carrel-Dakin treatment, which is one of the most notable surgical developments of the war, is the use of a solution of hypochlorite under conditions which utilize the germicidal properties of the chlorine and avoid its caustic effects. This chemical compound has the unique property of killing the bacteria and exerting a solvent effect upon dead tissue, thus reducing in the wound the opportunity for bacteria to develop."

From the New York Sun: "The great success of Drs. Carrel and Dakin, especially the advances made in the treatment of deeply wounded legs and arms, which formerly were invariably amputated, but now are saved by the new treatment, is widely known among laymen. Deep wounds meant infection that the surgeon's knife could not get at to cleanse; therefore the leg had to come off. Dr. Carrel perfected a method of treatment whereby a tube inserted into the wound a solution of hypochlorite that acted as a thorough disinfectant, and yet avoided the caustic effects of the iodine. The chemical properties of the solution simultaneously kill bacteria, and have a solvent action upon dead tissue, thus minimizing the opportunities for progressive infection."

International Journal of Surgery: "In this war, infection has played the most important role in surgery. There has not been a great advance in the treatment of infected wounds in the past fifty years, since the beginning of the war about 75 per cent of the amputations were performed because of infection and not because of the purely traumatic condition of the limb—about the same ergotaxis as was practiced in other great wars. Fortunately, Dr. Carrel and Dr. Dakin, with their associates, were successful in arriving at a definite line of treatment for such infected wounds."

Every Week comments most cheerfully: "Today, thanks to Lister and Dakin's tireless efforts, an acknowledged revolution has been wrought in the treatment of infection . . . The specter of the battle front is being brought into our everyday life, with consequences of incalculable good."

The Cosmopolitan Magazine, in commenting upon this outstanding solution of a great problem, said:

"The great difficulty is that every germicide which is strong enough to kill germs will also poison or injure the tissues. Finally, the brilliant young Franco-American surgeon, Dr. Carrel, and the chemist, Dr. Dakin, devised and perfected a germicide strong enough to kill germs but against which the cells of the body could protect themselves—curing war surgery from a depressing defeat into a glorious victory."

What has been done in behalf of the fighting forces becomes equally applicable in industrial surgery, to mention the vast civil populace in its multiple walks of life.

Infection is not discriminatory; it is not balked by social conditions; and those best qualified to know admit its omnipresence and its ceaseless menace.

Dr. Carrel has shown what science, the microscope, and common sense, in collaboration, may bring forth; and of this trio he personally lays a great deal of stress upon the last.

In the evening every woman faces her enemies

Are you at their mercy, too?

Tired out by the strain of a long day, yet trying to conceal it—

It is in the evening that every woman faces her deadliest enemies—the little tired lines, the weariness of body and brain that make her seem dull and uninteresting, where others are attractive.

It may be her own fault. Every normal woman starts the day with energy enough to carry her through the evening—if she doesn't waste it. Yet too often, instead of saving it for the things that count, she wastes it in a score of useless ways.

Standing and walking all day on hard heels—that's one of the greatest wastes, and one of the most useless.

Do you dread the evenings—fear that the tiredness of your body will show?

Twenty-five years ago a man who worked constantly on his feet all day discovered by accident an idea that is saving the strength of millions of women today.

One day instead of standing on the hard floor he stood on a rubber mat. The effect astonished him. That night instead of his usual lack of energy—and backache—he felt better than he had in weeks.

Next day he cut out two pieces of rubber from the mat and fastened them to the heels of his shoes.

And that was the start of the idea that resulted in O'Sullivan's Heels!

Look at your heels!

Like all good things, O'Sullivan's Heels have been widely imitated.

Are yours O'Sullivan's?

If they're not, ask your repairman for O'Sullivan's next time—and notice the difference! See how much freer you are from tiredness and strain at the end of each day.

There is an O'Sullivan Heel for practically every style of women's shoes—for the high Cuban heel as well as for the various low heel types and the "in-between" styles. O'Sullivan's are always adapted to the prevailing mode.

Furthermore, as millions of women are finding out, they preserve the original trim appearance of the heel, and prevent the running over that occurs so quickly with ordinary heels.

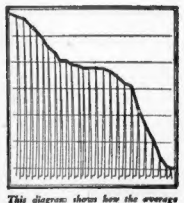
O'Sullivan's usually cost you no more than ordinary rubber heels. But wear a pair—and you'll know why millions always insist on them!

City vibrations would ruin these instruments

Balances delicate enough to weigh the ink on a comma—galvanometers whose needles betray the presence of even the slightest electric current—seismographs that show small tremors in the earth from shocks 3,000 miles away—

These instruments will not perform their functions in cities where heavy traffic keeps every building, street, and sidewalk in a constant state of vibration. That is why they had to build the U. S. Bureau of Standards in the country.

Is it any wonder that thousands of men and women are trying to protect the human body, the most sensitive instrument of all, against constant shocks and vibration?



This diagram shows how the average person's energy falls. Do you go down too far each day toward exhaustion?

O'Sullivan's Heels

Absorb the shocks that tire you out

Your energy is limited—don't waste it

BACK HOME WITH HIS 'DESTINY' BRIDE

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 18.—With his dark-eyed "picture bride," Y. Chatelian, an Armenian resident of this city, returned from New York today, where he went to welcome Miss Victoria Melkonian, who arrived last week on the S. S. Olympic, after surviving the burning of the Asia Minor port of Smyrna.

Miss Melkonian told Chatelian that if her home had not been destroyed and her parents lost in the conflagration, she might not have decided to come to America to marry him.

When she arrived at Ellis Island she created a sensation by declaring herself a "bride of destiny as much as by choice." The appearance of Chatelain and the story of their courtship by correspondence explained the meaning of her words.

Collapses in Subway

A man believed to be an Italian, about sixty years of age, was suddenly taken ill in the Park Street Subway Station today and dropped to the floor unconscious. He was removed to the Haymarket Relief Hospital.

GIRL TRIES TO DIE IN LOVE TRIANGLE

Myra Fisher, twenty-two years old, swallowed bichloride of mercury tablets in her room at No. 199 West Springfield street, South End, because she believed the man she loved was paying attention to other girls.

At City Hospital it developed that the girl is married and the wife of a Providence man. It was also learned that the man for whose love she attempted to die is William Harding of Lynn.

It is the second time that she has sought death. Following a tearful, bedside reconciliation with Harding, physicians announced that she would recover.

The Lynn man called on her earlier and a quarrel is said to have followed.

Subsequently she swallowed several bichloride tablets from a phial found near her bedside. Her groans attracted the landlady, Mrs. Evelyn McNamara, who summoned medical aid.

As she left the house the girl said to her landlady: "Oh, Mrs. McNamara, I wanted to die if I couldn't have all of Billy's love."

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Beckham of Providence, later arrived at her bedside and told her that they will take her home as soon as she recovers.

Today Is Last Day to Register for State Election

Today is the last day for registration.

All those who wish to vote at the State election on November 7 must have their name registered by 10 o'clock tonight.

Registration has been lagging.

Remember that there is a registration place in every ward in the city, open until 10 o'clock.

The election commissioners' office at City Hall Annex will also be open until that hour. The registration places open at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Monthly Joint Social

The first monthly joint social of St. Mary's Catholic Association, Cambridge, will be held this evening at the hall, corner of Prospect and Harvard streets, Cambridge. Whist, bowling and dancing will afford entertainment. Arrangements are in the charge of Miss Margaret Keller and John C. Burns.

LLOYD GEORGE THREATENS TO RESIGN

London, Oct. 18 (By the Associated Press).—The British political fever has now reached its height. Everybody is guessing as to when the crisis will pass and what turn it will take, pending tomorrow's Unionist meeting at the Carlton Club.

One anti-coalition newspaper, the Daily Mail, today attributes to Prime Minister Lloyd George the definite statement that he will resign if the Unionist meeting declares against Austen Chamberlain, whose outspoken adhesion to the Premier has aroused strong opposition in the party ranks.

Mr. Lloyd George's statement is said to have been made at a private meeting last night of the Liberal ministers and undersecretaries.

Some of the best informed political correspondents believe he will resign if Mr. Chamberlain is voted down. It would then be up to the King to invite the Conservative party to try its hand at forming a Cabinet.

If, on the contrary, the meeting gives Mr. Chamberlain anything approaching strong support, the Premier, it is reiterated, will advise the King to dissolve Parliament, and then appeal to the country on a coalition ticket.

The moderate labor leader, Arthur Henderson, in a speech yesterday at Newport, Monmouthshire—where there is a bye election today, in which labor will have the opportunity of showing its strength, said labor seeks national financial reform on the principle of ability to pay, and would lighten the national debt by a war debt redemption fund through a levy on accumulated wealth, beginning with all fortunes exceeding £5,000.

Labor also declares war against private industrial enterprise and advocates greater extension of collective responsibility. This especially applies to such national services as the mines and railroads.

BRITISH PLAYWRIGHT ARRIVES FOR TOUR

Mrs. Clifford Grey. Photo by International News Reel.

New York, Oct. 18.—Latest of the British authors and playwrights to invade America is Clifford Grey, who with Mrs. Grey has just arrived for a tour of the United States. The photographer found them delighted at their first glimpse of New York's skyline, as they stood on the deck of the S. S. Celtic. Grey wrote the book of "Sally," Marilyn Miller's great success, and also "Phi Phi," which is making a big record in London.

SPEED HONORS WON BY MARINE OFFICER

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 18.—Lieutenant L. H. Sanderson, U. S. Marine Corps, won first honors at the aeronautic races here, piloting a navy seaplane at a speed of 125 miles an hour. Sanderson completed the first three laps of the race in the shortest elapsed time, and he led the field to within one mile of the finish, being compelled to land because of an empty gasoline tank.

SENIORS AT ENGLISH HIGH ELECT LEADER

Harry L. Kozol.

Harry L. Kozol of No. 37 Stanford street was elected president of the graduation class at Boston English High at a meeting held in the school. Other officers were elected as follows: John O'Connor, vice-president; David Rose, secretary and treasurer. The executive committee is headed by David Metz with Harry Buckman as an assistant.

FIRE SWEPT LINER SUNK BY SHOTS

San Francisco, Oct. 18.—With colors flying, the liner City of Honolulu, swept by fire Thursday, sang in 2,500 fathoms of water yesterday after the coast guard cutter Shawnee had poured twenty-one shots into the hulk, according to a radiogram received by the coast guard here today. The Honolulu's grave was more than 600 miles southwest of San Francisco. Not a person was injured when she caught fire and was abandoned.

The Home of 40 Famous Brands of Clothes for Men and Young Men

Georges

43 Years in Business

45-47 Summer St.

The response of the public to our invitation to attend the opening of this new clothing institution on Saturday was nothing short of overwhelming. The idea of showing 40 nationally famous brands of clothes for men and young men UNDER ONE ROOF made the deepest impression on the thousands who streamed in endless procession through our doors. We are most grateful for your marked expressions of approval. That Boston needed such a store as GEORGES was proved beyond the question of a doubt. Have you seen it?

$25 is a popular price with thousands of clothing buyers, and in view of this fact we have chosen thousands of garments from the lines of the 40 nationally famous makers whose merchandise we feature, to demonstrate the wonderful values we are able to offer.

The fabrics and patterns are overwhelming in their variety. No matter what your size or proportion, you can be fitted. "Students," sizes 31 to 35. For men and young men—regulars, shorts, stouts and longs, sizes 33 to 52.

1 and 2-Pants Suits

We wish to give you exactly what you want and have therefore marked our prices as is our usual custom—on the basis of single pairs of trousers. If you wish the extra pair you may have it by paying an extra charge as follows: $5 Extra for additional Pants with $25 Suits. $6.50 Extra for additional Pants with $30 Suits.

Proportionately higher prices prevail for the finer grades.

MOVE FOR PEACE IN IRELAND BREAKS DOWN

Dublin, Oct. 18 (By International News Service).—Peace negotiations between Eamon de Valera, leader of the Republicans, and the Irish Free State government have broken down because the Republicans refused to give up their arms. An unfounded rumor of peace caused a sharp rise in prices on the stock exchange.

One civilian was wounded in a violent fight that followed an attack upon a British post.

MEMORIAL TO MRS. PHOEBE HEARST

San Francisco, Oct. 18.—Erection of a permanent memorial to the memory of Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, noted California philanthropist, will be begun within the next few months, according to an announcement made by the Phoebe Apperson Hearst Memorial Association recently organized.

The memorial will be in the form of a great drinking fountain to be placed probably in historic Golden Gate Park.

The advisory committee of the association numbers among its members civic and social leaders, the clergy, men and women prominent in public life and many prominent members of the faculty of the University of California and the board of regents of that institution.

The University of California received large sums of money, many valuable works of art and Hearst Hall, recently destroyed by fire, as evidences of Mrs. Hearst's interest in education.

HIS HONOR THE MAYOR
Mr. James M. Curley Says:

"I've seen 'ONE EXCITING NIGHT' twice and will see it again. A GREAT PICTURE. I think the comedy the best I ever looked at on the screen, and the Storm the greatest effect ever shown."

PRESIDENT OF THE CITY COUNCIL
Mr. David J. Brickley Says:

"It's REAL ENTERTAINMENT. The little opening with the love scenes and gentle comedy is enjoyable; but after the story gets into the House of Mystery, with the Boy and Girl endangered, and things begin to happen to poor Romeo Washington, IT'S REALLY GREAT! Everybody says so much about the marvelous Storm that I need not add any words of praise."

WILLIAM COLLIER
Foremost intellectual comedian of the American Stage, and principal of the "MUSIC BOX REVUE," Says:

"'ONE EXCITING NIGHT' a truly wonderful picture; Mr. Griffith's handling of the 'suspect' or 'culprit' by action and without the speaking stage stand-by of dialogue is GENIUS AND ART. The comedy is GENUINELY FUNNY, and the great Storm at the close a MASTER WORK.

BELLE ISLE PLAN WOULD MAKE PALM BEACH OF NEW ENGLAND

New England a second Palm Beach.

Engineers can accomplish this feat, according to Lieutenant-Commander Stuart S. Brown of the United States Hydrographic office in the Custom House. First, they must obtain the permission of England, which owns the particular body of water which is the key to the situation.

By closing the Straits of Belle Isle, between Labrador and Newfoundland, the cold water current, caused by icebergs which flow through the straits, will be abolished and the warm Gulf Stream will hug the shores of New England, it is asserted.

ROSES IN DECEMBER.

The erratic climate of this section of the country, where winds and frigid weather prevail during the Winter months, would be changed to a tropical climate, according to the plan.

Roses would bloom during the month of December, robins would sing from blooming apple trees during the month of January and the coal man would go into bankruptcy.

Millions of dollars spent each year by New Englanders for coal with which to fight off the cold weather, would be saved. Poor families, unable to obtain a supply during the many coal shortages, would never worry and New England would become a vacation resort second to none in the entire world.

ENGLAND WOULD FREEZE.

But in bringing this warm tropical weather to our section of the United States, England, which controls the Straits of Belle Isle, would freeze. It would lose the warm waters of the Gulf Stream.

Would John Bull agree to such a plan? Perhaps he would if the United States cancelled the great war debt which England owes us.

Instead of furnaces, New Englanders would need electric fans the year round. Palm trees, instead of fir trees, would decorate the landscape. Even in the most severe Winter weather, the thermometer would rarely drop below 64 degrees.

New England housewives need not worry about the coal shortage or fuel administrators, who urge them to use soft coal in their cook stoves.

"A tropical climate for New England is a possibility," declared Commander Brown, who makes a study of climatic conditions and the effect of the various "currents" of the Atlantic Ocean.

ICEBERGS DIVERTED.

"Perhaps England would never agree to closing the Straits of Belle Isle, however. In closing the straits, the icebergs, which flow through that body of water and shunt the Gulf Stream into the middle of the Atlantic Ocean before it reaches New England, would be diverted to England and the British Isles.

"A French professor makes a statement in which he declares that the construction of a new railroad between Key West and Miami, Fla., has diverted the Gulf Stream to some extent," Commander Brown continued.

"This isn't true. The new railroad, as shown on the map just issued by the Department of Commerce, shows that large bridges have been built wherever there is a flow of water in path of the railroad. That railroad is too far South, in any event, to change the Gulf Stream's path when it reaches New England."

PLAN IS POSSIBLE.

It is entirely possible, however, according to the commander, for engineers to divert the cold water in the Straits of Belle Isle and keep the icebergs which flow through that body of water, from coming near the New England coast. The current from the straits would also be abolished and the Gulf Stream would come closer to the New England shores.

Eleven miles of water separate Newfoundland from Labrador, where the Straits of Belle Isle are located. It would take a marvellous feat of engineering to accomplish this project, but it is a physical possibility.

"If the engineers closed the straits which shunt the current of the Gulf Stream into mid-ocean, New Englanders could demand anthracite coal or nothing," is the comment made by Commander Brown. "The waters of the much discussed Gulf Stream would hug the shores of New England and the temperature would remain at about 65 degrees throughout the Winter."

LABRADOR CURRENT COLD.

The Labrador current, which flows between the Gulf Stream and the New England Coast, reaches a temperature of 52 degrees when it passes the Port of Boston. The water is warmed by contact with the Gulf Stream. When it leaves Labrador the current registers a temperature of 44 degrees.

New England can have a temperature equal to that of Cuba if it can arrange with the powers that be in England to stop the waters of that particular section of the Atlantic Ocean known as the Straits of Belle Isle.

WIFE ON TRIAL FOR DOUBLE KILLING

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Catherine Rosier went on trial today, charged with the murder of her husband, Oscar, and his stenographer, Mildred Reckitt, who were shot in Rosier's Advertising Agency.

The unwritten law will be invoked to free Mrs. Rosier. The only legal interpretation of such a defence recognized by the laws of Pennsylvania is emotional insanity. Testimony by alienists is expected to play a large part in the trial.

For more than nine months Mrs. Rosier has been confined in Moyamensing prison. Her hope she could have her infant son, Richard, [illegible] new a year old, with her during the [illegible] torney's office.

Did you get up this morning tired, head dull, back aching, joints stiff, muscles sore, weak all over?

Hard to get a good night's sleep for reasons you know?

Are rheumatic pains; swellings; irritated bladder; congested kidneys causing misery and distress?

Rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles, and all other ailments due to excessive acid, no matter how chronic or stubborn, yield to The Williams Treatment.

Send this notice and 10 cents to pay part cost of postage, packing, etc., to The Dr. D. A. Williams Co., Y-1717 P. O. Bldg., East Hampton, Conn. We will send you an 85c. bottle (32 doses) free, by parcel post. No further obligation on your part. Only one free bottle to any family or address.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered until you try this famous home-made remedy. The prompt relief is almost magical. It is easily prepared, and there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Hot Water And Magnesia The Best Stomach Medicine

Bisurated Magnesia Neutralizes the Dangerous Stomach Acids That Cause Indigestion

Medical authorities are now practically agreed that stomach trouble and indigestion should never be treated with artificial digestants and medicines that weaken the natural power of digestion but instead the stomach should be kept sweet and clean and its excess acid neutralized so that food may digest normally and pass from the stomach as nature intended.

Practically all indigestion is caused by an excess of acid in the stomach which causes the food to sour and ferment, bringing on gas, bloating, heartburn, sharp pains and a dull, heavy, listless feeling. Neutralize or drive out this dangerous acidity and all the disagreeable symptoms will quickly cease.

Men and women who suffer after eating are urged to drink after every meal a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful or two tablets of pure Bisurated Magnesia in it as a pleasant and harmless means of not only preventing the excessive formation of acid in the stomach and thereby stopping all chance of pain, gas, sourness or indigestion.

This treatment is not only a preventive but a corrective and used promptly when pain is felt gives almost immediate relief. Genuine Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained at most any good drug store in either powder or tablet form. It does not injure the stomach, is easy and pleasant to use and quite inexpensive.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the whole body. 10c and 30c.

BEVERLY YOUTH IS MYSTERIOUSLY HURT

Beverly, Oct. 18.—Mystery surrounds an unexplained accident which befell Harold Burgess of No. 72 Chase street, Beverly, Sunday night, and which has left him since in a dazed condition.

The lad was found on Bridge street, Salem, lying beside his bicycle. On one leg was an extensive bruise, but he was able to walk home after being given stimulants, and seemed unhurt except for this one injury. On arriving at his home he fell into a stupor, and has remained in that condition since.

DESERTED WIFE OFFERS CHILD FOR ADOPTION

Mrs. Mary Curry Clark offers her two-year-old infant for adoption in order that a child soon to be born to her may have a chance.

On the eve of her second motherhood Mrs. Clark has been deserted by her husband Thornton Clark, who left their rooming house on West Newton street, Saturday.

"It breaks my heart to give up Thornton junior," Mrs. Clark declared, "but I have neither money nor strength here alone to care for him and the other child. It is a life for a life. They are both my children and my mother love would not permit either Junior or the unborn to be sacrificed because I wish to keep both."

Anyone who can give the child a good home is urgently requested to communicate at once with Mrs. Clark at her home on West Newton street.

PASTOR TAKES STAND AGAINST FILM CENSOR

"If individual citizens, of their own initiative, can't protect their homes and families from theatrical indecencies, it's mighty little help they will get from public officials."

Thus does Rev. A. W. Littlefield, pastor of the Middlebero Methodist Church, treat moving picture censorship. Mr. Littlefield believes in personal action against pictures that are not proper. He believes that a word to the theatre manager is sufficient to insure the withdrawal of indecent films, without the need of a highly paid censor.

BE OWN CENSOR.

"Theatre managers will readily conform to requests to drop improper pictures from their program. Managers, as a rule, welcome objections where their films are not pleasing to their patrons. If moving picture patrons become their own censors, there will be no need of a State censor. Try it and see.

"Don't run to the government to get things done that you can do yourself. You mostly add to tax burdens without any satisfactory result."

Mr. Littlefield takes the initiative among the clergy in his stand against censorship of the films.

Election day is drawing near. The Boston American's Censorship Contest is booming. And with that boom comes the conviction that censorship will go down in a shower of ballots. Send in your letter and be eligible to win either the $250, $100 or $50 prize to be given for the three best letters. An award of $2 goes to the writer of each letter published.

Following are some letters:

BY NARROW-MINDED.

Editor Boston American:

It seems inconceivable that citizens of Massachusetts could, for an instant, consider establishing a censorship over public entertainment. Unless the people of our Commonwealth are aroused to the Czar-form of government that we are establishing for ourselves, by ourselves, because we, ourselves, are the only ones responsible for it, we will soon be governed absolutely by centralized bureaus established in the State House. City and town government will cease to function except as mere forms or rubber stamps. This is no idle warning.

Censorship, except in war matters, is the product of narrow-minded persons who are determined to force their shallow ideas into law for the government of the multitude.

Every screen producer knows that he cannot afford to offend the public. Already we have sufficiency of laws to protect society in its liberty. Moralists cannot be produced by statute. Saints cannot be made by law, but sinners or violators of legislative enactment, frequently are.

There is no place in American public entertainment for that which is vile. Sometimes we have to suggest immorality to make purity shine by contrast. We would not know truth if there were no falsehood, nor sincerity if there were no hypocricy.

GEORGE A. BAKER.

West Dennis.

Public Is "Goat" in Matter of Censorship

The public, always the goat, will get it in the neck, if the censorship bill is accepted.

On one hand, the tax-payers will have to dig a little deeper to pay for the upkeep of the censor's department, which will be increased by the addition of censorship enforcement officers.

On the other hand, the producers will have to jump their prices in order to meet the added expense to them, for they will have to pay to have their films inspected. So, coming and going, the dear old public will once more be punched.

Today, some more of Boston's Army of Employed take issue with censorship and here is what some of them have to say about it:

Miss Mabel Fuller

Miss Mabel Fuller, No. 88 Glenwood road, Somerville, says: "If our censored Sunday night shows are any indication of what we will get if week-day shows are also censored, I think it is about time that the people woke up and put censorship out of business. Imagine watching a romance of the screen with the sentiment robbed by a censor. Or watching a serial that has been all chopped up so that one can't keep track of it. Who started this censorship business, anyway?"

Miss Helen Walsh

Miss Helen Walsh, Gilmore street, Everett, voices her opinion as follows: "Pretty soon they will be telling us what to eat and what to wear. Every time these reformers finish one pleasure, for us, they start in to stop another. Pretty soon we will have censors in every newspaper office. I say that censorship of the movies should be so badly beaten on November 7 that it will not be brought up again."

Curtis Tholander, No. 377 Summer street, Somerville, said: "You'd think, that Massachusetts people were a lot of degenerates who needed the help of an all-wise man to keep them from going to their ruin. I'd like to know the man who is so superior, in wisdom, that he could satisfactorily serve as guide, in things right and wrong, for 4,000,000 people. And besides, how long will this be a free country if these fanatics keep up their work?"

Curtis Tholander

Ernest Mellberg, of No. 10 Brattle street, Arlington, says: "The worst result of censorship, as I see it, is the big increase in taxation that will be necessary to support the censor's department. With the appointment of several officers and assistants, all at good salaries, it will mean saddling a big burden on the public. On the other hand, it will be necessary for producers to charge more for the films, to cover the added cost of censoring. And again, the public will have to pay."

Ernest Mellberg

General Dunn Asks All Veterans to Fight Censorship

Brigadier General J. H. Dunn

BRIGADIER GENERAL JOHN H. DUNN, commander of the Massachusetts department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has sent out an appeal to all members of that organization to fight the censorship bill. In his letter he says, in part:

"Your executive committee believes that it is for the best interests not alone for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, but for the entire citizenship of the State to vote NO on this Referendum. Censorship means that one man is to determine just what pictures the citizens of Massachusetts may or may not see.

"Censorship would create unnecessary expense to the already burdened taxpayer—unnecessary because censorship is an acknowledged failure everywhere it has been tried. This is not a political question. It violates the fundamental principles for which this organization stands and for which you fought.

"We ask you to remember that the motion picture has always stood our friend and the friend of all soldiers. The chance has come to pay back some of the debt of gratitude we owe."

CURLEY TO OPEN CITY COKE STATIONS WITHIN FEW DAYS

PRICE OF FUEL NOT YET SET

20 Deer Island Prisoners Start Work Today Bagging at East Boston

Boston will, within a few days, open its first municipal coke yards for the benefit of needy persons who have no coal in their cellars and wish to purchase a substitute in the form of coke.

Colonel Thomas F. Sullivan, chairman of Mayor Curley's municipal fuel committee, and also chairman of the transit department, has made the location of the stations where coke may be purchased public.

WORK BY PRISONERS.

Today, twenty short term prisoners from the Deer Island House of Correction, are working voluntarily at the East Boston wharf of the City Fuel Company, bagging coke.

They were brought up from Deer Island in charge of Deputy Institution Commissioner Dennis D. Driscoll aboard the city steamer George A. Hibbard. Each was armed with a pitch fork and a good sized lunch box. They arrived at East Boston at 8.30. An armed guard accompanied them.

This is the first time in the history of the city that inmates of a house of correction have been used for such a purpose. The work was not compulsory. Deputy Driscoll called for volunteers and scores responded.

2,000 TONS TO BE BAGGED.

At the East Boston wharf there are about 1,000 tons of coke. After the prisoners get through bagging this another thousand tons await them at the wharf of the Metropolitan Coal Company in Chelsea. At noon a huge tank of hot coffee was provided for the men. On returning to the Island a red hot dinner and a bath awaits them.

According to institution officials the inmates are eager for the experiment, hoping that by volunteering they might become eligible for parole.

Most of the volunteers are serving sentences for drunkenness and non-support.

PRICE NOT YET FIXED.

Chairman Sullivan of the committee says that he is not at present ready to fix the price of the coke. This will have to be figured out after the carting is done by trucks procured either from the city or from some large motor transport concern. The statutes restrict the city from selling either at a loss or a profit.

The work a the stations will be handled by city employes, thus reducing the cost to the consumer.

DEMAND FOR COKE.

There has been a great demand for the coke, according to Colonel Sullivan, even though the weather for the past week or so has been mild.

Mayor Curley has already gotten options on about 200,000 tons of coke and on 25,000 tons of semi-anthracite coal, that he may purchase either in whole or in part.

Other members of the committee in charge of the distribution of the coke are: Theodore Glynn, fire commissioner, and Frank P. Rock, superintendent of supplies.

Location of Boston Yards Where Coke Can Be Bought

Where the public may purchase municipal coke:

Sanitary yard, North Grove street, West End; paving yard, Hyde Park avenue, Hyde Park; paving yard, Highland street, Roxbury; water yard, Western avenue, Brighton; paving yard, Eagle street, East Boston; paving yard, Hancock street, Dorchester; paving yard, Child street, Jamaica Plain; old police station No. 6, Broadway, South Boston; water department yard, Medford and Tufts streets, Charlestown, and paving yard, Albany street, South End.

DOLLS' MOTHER ON TRIAL AS SLAYER

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 18.—Accused by her husband of killing twin babies, which he said were born to her last December, Mrs. Hazel McNally, twenty-four, faced trial here today. She claims the missing twins were dolls, mothered by her until last April to satisfy her husband's ambition to be known as a father.

Both Frank McNally, the fifty-six-year-old husband, and his estranged wife asserted their claims would be proved by witnesses.

Police dug in the yard of the home where the McNallys formerly lived, searching for the bodies they had been told might be buried there.

Mrs. McNally declared she told her husband shortly after their marriage it was impossible for her to become a mother.

"On one occasion we inserted an advertisement offering to adopt a child, but nothing came of it," she said. "Finally his mania to pose as a father became so acute that we contrived the hoax."

Mrs. McNally said she passed the hoax on to neighbors and as the time approached to announce the birth, went so far as to engage a nurse and then purchased the dolls.

She said she kept the "twins" hidden from the eyes of neighbors until last April, when she and her husband circulated the report they had sent the children to Chicago.

BOSTON COAL RATE IS TAKEN UP

Railway freight rates on coal shipments to Boston are cheaper than to intermediate points, according to coal dealers and representatives of the carriers in New England who today attended a hearing on coal freight rates before Examiner Cheslebine of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the Federal Building.

They said the cheaper rates are occasioned by the fact Boston gets coal by rail and water and the railroads have to meet the water rates. The present rates, they said, do not meet the requirements of the commission's rulings and an adjustment may be necessary.

5 CHILDREN KILLED AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

Vicksburg, Miss., Oct. 18.—Five children, ten to fourteen years, were killed and twelve others injured when the truck in which twenty were returning home from school near Bovina was struck by a freight train of the Alabama & Vicksburg Railroad.

The dead: Bertha Potter, nineteen; Annie Lee Potter, fourteen; John Oscar Cunningham, ten; two unidentified children.

Gadie Gibson, driver of the truck, and one of the school children are believed to be fatally injured.

Season's Buds Flock to Opening of Junior League Rooms, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

TALL and short, light and dark, the debutantes of the season all made their way to the Junior League rooms on Boylston street the other afternoon.

The occasion was a tea in honor of the opening of the Junior "Leaguers" rooms for the season, and no less than seventy-five young women turned out for the affair. What a buzzing of voices there was—some were whispering of debuts shortly to be made, while others laughed and joked about the good times they had had together at finishing school.

The popular and attractive president of the club Mrs. Francis C. Gray (Helen Bullard), of Marlboro street, is spending the Autumn with her mother in New Bedford. During her absence Miss Isabella Mumford of Chestnut Hill is taking her place, so that the club is not without a guiding wand.

The rooms, by the way, are very daintily furnished and make an unusually pleasant meeting-place of the smart set's feminine contingent.

AMONG the buds of the season whom I espied in the crush at the opening of the Junior League's rooms was tall and slender Mary Post. She is a very aristocratic looking young person and has the loveliest of brown hair, gleaming with reddish tints. Miss Post, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Reed Post of Marlboro street, will be presented on the first evening of December at a dance which Mr. and Mrs. Henry Forbes Bigelow are giving for her and Miss Frances Weld, debutante daughter of the Bernard C. Welds.

MISS ELLEN BULLARD and Miss Mary Reynolds are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. William Norton Bullard at "Highwood," their Lenox estate. Other Bostonians visiting in Lenox are Mr. and Mrs. James Freeman, who are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hollister Pease.

I WASN'T at all surprised to hear that Bayard Tuckerman, Jr.'s, whippets had taken high honors at the races held recently on the estate of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Phipps at Westbury, N. Y. The Tuckerman Jr.'s never seem to enter any sporting event without coming out at, or very near, the top.

WHEN Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson returned to America from abroad a little while ago, they had a number of Bostonians as fellow passengers. Among the latter were Mrs. Robert H. Stevenson, Jr., of Marlboro street and her little niece, Miss Betty Thomas. It will be remembered that when another piece, Miss Alice Thomas, made her debut last Winter, Mrs. Stevenson gave a number of entertainments in her honor.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel Paul were also on board the Olympic. Mrs. Paul is a sister of Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Jr., who has a host of friends and connections here.

ANOTHER couple who are expected to play a prominent part in the gayeties of the young married set this season are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Curtis, Jr. (Mary Colt).

Last year they spent the Winter in New York on Park avenue, but this Winter they are to be at No. 447 Beacon street. Just at present, I believe, Mrs. Curtis has as her guest her mother, Mrs. Richard C. Colt of New York.

The marriage of Miss Colt to the young Harvard '14 man took place two Summers ago, occupying a prominent place among the Boston-Gotham nuptial events.

I HEAR that Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon has leased for the Winter Mrs. William A. Slater's apartment on Massachusetts avenue in Washington.

Mr. Mellon's daughter, Miss Aiala Mellon, is still at "Avalon," the Pride's Crossing estate of the Keith Merrills', which the Mellons leased for the Summer. Secretary Mellon comes to "Avalon" for the week-end whenever his duties permit.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM HENRY SLOCUM of Boston are visiting Mr. and Mrs. David Ives Mackie at "Pineliff," their Great Barrington estate.

Betty Alden

MISS MARY POST

Miss Mary Post, who is seen here as she was snapped at a recent North Shore sporting event, was among the debutantes attending the opening of the Junior League's rooms. She is the daughter of the John Reed Posts of Marlboro street.

SCHOONER IS ON REEF; 8 RESCUED

New Bedford, Oct. 18.—Life guards from the Cuttyhunk Coast Guard Station today rescued Captain Morrisey and his crew of seven of the three-masted British schooner Seaman A. O., Jersey City to Perrsboro, N. S., with hard coal, which grounded on Sow and Pigs Reef at 2:30 a. m. The vessel is making water rapidly. A freshening breeze from westward is lessening chances of getting her off at high tide. The schooner is only three years old and is expected to be a total loss.

GETS INTO FILM AFTER IT HAS BEEN SHOWN

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Porter Strong, the actor, whose comedy in "One Exciting Night" is a big feature of the latest Griffith film, has the distinction of making his first great success in motion pictures in a film which had been running for several weeks before he appeared in it.

How could an actor get into a film which was already being shown to audiences?

D. W. Griffith is the only producer with whom that is possible.

When "Orphans of the Storm" was shown in Boston last season the chief criticism of that marvelous epic of the French Revolution was that there were no laughs in it.

Griffith retorted that there was no comedy in "Hamlet" either. His managers replied that "Hamlet" was a frost on the road now-a-days.

So Griffith went back to his studio outside New York and began to make comedy scenes to be substituted in "Orphans" for some of the harrowing ones. It was then that Porter Strong got his chance. He appeared as an intoxicated baker in the revolution scenes and his antics convulsed the audiences and gave necessary relief to the relentless tragedy which was going forward.

Thus Strong had the distinction of being inserted into a motion picture after the picture was not only made but had been on exhibition for a month.

Griffith decided that such a belated debut would not happen to his next picture. Result: Porter Strong is on the job from the start.

The versatility of this actor is remarkable, for in "One Exciting Night," he plays a Southern darkey who is frightened nearly to death by the weird and mysterious events in the haunted house. Mr. Strong is a Southerner by birth, but he is not a darkey, except when he puts on burnt cork.

'Read the Green and Keep Sane' is the Advice of Dr. Alberts

IF you want to keep sane, read the green edition of the Boston American.

No, it's not quite as bad as that, but science says that the color green will help you to keep a level head.

"The great value of the color green," says Dr. C. Alberts, Summer street optometrist, "is that it is natural. The eye likes to rest on green, whether its trees, money, or the Boston American Green Edition.

"Put an insane man in a room where red is the only color, and you will increase his insanity. If you put him in a room where green is the predominent color, however, you will alleviate his insanity somewhat.

"If you have waved a red flag before a fully-grown and spirited bull, you have some idea of the disquieting effect of that color.

"White paper is only a little less displeasing to the eye than red. The clear white of news print paper is not found in nature. If you are inclined to be nervous and irritable, the reading of print on a white paper will aggravate your condition. Green, on the other hand, tends to sooth and calm an irritable mind."

LOVE FOR MRS. MILLS RULED RECTOR'S LIFE, DIARY REVEALS

EXPRESSES BURNING LONGING FOR ENDLESS CARESSES

Wednesday, August 2—Up at six at Rothland and took boat for Seal Harbor—Dense fog all the way—reached Seal at eleven and over to Islesford. Unpacked in the afternoon—Darling, I do want you to see these islands some day—oh, you must—Darling, do you know how I am longing, longing for you?"

Thursday, August 3—This morning George Kemmer invited me to go sailing with him and in the afternoon a large party went in George Kemmer's launch to Somesville—I had hoped to stop at Seal Harbor to see if there was a card for you, but we were so late we had to come directly back to Islesford—I hope surely to go to Seal Harbor tomorrow — Good-night, darling—I am living with you—rather, we are together every moment, dear heart of mine.

The Rev. Mr. Hall and his wealthy wife were vacationing at Islesford, two and one-half miles from Seal Harbor. Formal letters—of which are said to have been several—were sent by Mrs. Mills directly to Islesford. Written tributes of love from the choir singer, however, were dispatched to Seal Harbor, where the minister called to collect them.

"Dear Heart of Mine."

Friday, August 4.—Another disappointment today, dear—I had hoped surely to get to Seal Harbor—but the fog set in thick very early so I waited until afternoon —Fog still as heavy as ever so I had to give up—Nothing but loafing around the island today—read a little—took several walks to the dock just waiting for tomorrow dear when I will go to Seal—Fog or no fog—I know there is a letter waiting there for me—Good night my beloved. Every blessing for my treasure—it seemed as though I live leg and leg in the body and more and more in your dear spirit—"

Saturday, August 5—Dear, dear, dear—what a wonderful day—real and bright this morning, so at 9:30 we went to Seal—my dear, dear letter was awaiting me—I guess it was like three—darling I did not sit—I walk—ed to every one between now—I am a bit pink, dear—oh, how I devoured every word. I sent off a card to you, but did not have a good chance to write and did not know how freely to talk, for I did not know who might be at the house when the letter reached you—Dearest, you know I wanted to write columns—you read between the lines I am sure—We took a walk around Baby's Pond Eagle Pond and Jordan Pond and returned to Islesford in the afternoon—Darling, I am radiant tonight because of your letters—yet perplexed and troubled, too, because when we got back to Islesford, there was a letter from Minnie saying that you had not been well—I shall write to you tomorrow and I will eagerly await your letter—Good night, wonder [illegible] Away from you!

Sunday, August 6—This morning I went to the chapel on the island and heard the missionary of the Maine Sea Coast Mission.

Dearest every moment today I have been living with you—wondering where you are—at church—at home—did you walk up to Nichol Ave. in the evening. This afternoon I wrote to you and this evening I shall have been singing the Kashmiri Song—the Radiance of Your Eyes—Love's Garden of Roses—

Dearest, will these days ever pass—each one seems weeks long—oh, how I long to be with you again—then you to me. Kiss you & just look at you & dream & wonder—I carry your picture with me & dream & dream—what wonderful days—True—strong—loyal—the Fire of Love that burns up everything unworthy and makes me feel prouder every moment—Dearest you must be feeling & knowing how I am loving you tonight—Good-night, good-night, beloved—I come to watch o'er thee—

Primitive Emotion

More of the burning "Wonder Heart" letters exchanged between the slain pastor and Mrs. Mills are published today. The missives are filled with endearing terms and unveil an intimate phase of the unconventional love that existed between the two.

The letters of Mrs. Mills are addressed to her "Sweet Adorable Babykins."

In the first letter written by Mrs. Mills she has taken her text from "The Mother of All Living," a novel of Africa by Robert Keable, author of the much discussed frank book, "Simon Called Peter."

The book is a fearless delineation of love between man and woman, a presentation of primitive emotion with a back ground in East Africa Mrs. Mills' letter dwells at length on what she has read in this book and from it she draws comparisons with her own love for Hall.

This is the letter:

"Dearest, how fast I can read. I remember, too, Honey mine, what a lot there is to talk about after reading the book.

"Pamela is clever, the kind of woman that keeps a man guessing. She knew she loved Chris from the beginning—she saw in Cecil what Chris loved—would she really have let him touch her body or would she resist at the last moment and be acquitted or degraded in him. She meant to have him—fair or foul, and she was too clever to let Cecil have him—for didn't she read he was a man worth having. But not until Cecil made him so. He is the winner, for Cecil's great, pure love made him perfect, but not for Cecil. For Pamela.

All-Knowing Love

"And Cecil's great, all knowing love told her he was unworthy of her love. Perhaps if she had never known of his trek with Pam fathom she would have found out the real Chris some time, she would rest everything aside and take what she thot she was getting—a true, noble Chris. But he wasn't then Love made him what he was in the end—a true lover. But in finding himself, he lost what he gained most—Cecil's wonder love—oh of course he was true to Cecil physically, but he was tempted—and a real man never can be. How I hated him

"Sunday across the darkness of the night Cecil's god was guiding her—her love made her realize why she told Chris to wait. He was unworthy of such a complete love. He was more to her than God—the child. Humans forget sometimes God is watching and guiding. How completely she loved—but the true voice of that great love showed her the truth that Chris wasn't worthy. Her ideals she would always cherish and love the Chris she thought he was, but he drained himself through the mud, tempted by physical passions, and so deserved to lose Cecil, although she would love him forever. She knew by having another child she would see her duty and not for a weak moment be blinded into going away with Chris, and so she used that way to prevent herself.

Ideal of Love

"Pamela got him, but with his ideal love turned into his heart and soul forever. Pam is a snake —why, dearie, you know in life if a girl wanted so she wanted Chris she wouldn't save herself for him. They all smoke and drink tea incessantly. If I should read three pages of the book without seeing the author's name I'd know it was Heabis. Pam thought she was clever, but was she? If Chris had taken her offer he would hate Pam in the morning.

"I can easily see that a man would be weak [illegible] dear, you know me—how many times to reckon with [illegible] how would Pam father [illegible] with Chris? Wouldn't she have children?

"Dearie—it is late, there is so much to talk about in the book. We must take it with us when we ride and talk about it, especially the marked places. Tom Van Keable certainly knows people's hearts. I love Chris and Cecil a few hours together. How he will miss her before leaving Mallory's. Oh it is sweet, darling—but nothing compared to our love. How they linger behind the others, their love vows and how they rush into each other's arms

"Take the book with you—or else I will leave it in your room. I don't want to read such books again ever; why didn't you know that they make me dream. Yearning for what perhaps I miss in this life. And to think now and hereafter I will never escape this longing until our souls are at last one. I hate to [illegible] as to recall ties—as I always have to. Reading books, I love them. Make me yours and as much as I love [illegible] why does it pain me to have to come back to even taking food for nourishment. So I long for the time when I will have you forever and dream.

Longings Fulfilled

"All earth's longings are fulfilled. Yesterday I was happy, in a way on the boat and in the water. But on the way home I was thinking hard, darling it is as if we have had a glimpse of what our souls carry out for and then be denied again. And I feel as though I never want to hear you say again, 'I love you,' or caress or kiss me so hard it hurts. You haven't any right to and then by having such a great love. But always—it is so and will ever be—we must always take the bitter with the sweet. And I hope I don't see you today. What is the use, when you always leave me. Oh, my darling babykins—what a mentality we are in. But I will be content, I will, I WILL."

In the second letter is ample evidence of Mrs. Mills' reproduction of the rector's love as revealed in his epistle. Like the other, it is undated and unsigned. It follows:

"Dearest, dearest boy of mine, wake me up. Or is it myself"

"When anyone else calls you endearing names and you say 'dear,' it is far more merciful of you to stab me. How can I even call you darling as I have this morning.

"Oh, I ought not to make it harder for you—but that is what you do to me and I am not repaying. Just stating what are the true facts. You say we are favored [illegible] this morning.

"What joy and peace is ours today and strength. How gracious God is to privilege us to know this most joyous blessing.

"Precious true heart I will write this afternoon when I will have more time.

"I am on my knees, darling, looking up at my nobleman, worshipping, adoring.

"Wonder of wonders—that I love you even more than yesterday more fragrant, this love of ours."

I wish some one would be merciful to me and give me something to put me to sleep, to forget you were disappointed—how you felt this morning—and get some relief from this constant pain. I never felt so miserable as I do now. You asked me did I want you to come. Honey mine, I was needing you as only you know—but he was here and so I said not to come. Tomorrow I believe I'll walk miles and be alone. Darling, can I bear it? My ear aches, too. The pain goes to the top of my head. Worse than before, for I am sick over the disappointment of not seeing you. It pains so at times I am unable to think a sound here and almost fall. Was it doesn't turn your mind I don't know, although it is, dee— isn't as painful as it was

"I want you—your arms to hold me and fold me close. If only to forget this pain for a moment. Nothing will give me relief like it. I was tempted to drink enough to put me to sleep but I am strong enough to realize it would do unutterable harm to the kidney.

"Dearest, give me some word of comfort. Tell me you know I was wild to come to you this afternoon but I couldn't. It will take hours for the pain of disappointment to leave me. My darling, you care every moment and suffer with me. Just to look at you tonight will be a relief and joy

"Wonderful Queen"

"I don't care how much [illegible] I will bear it and come to meet you."

Another letter written by the Rev Edward Wheeler Hall to Mrs Eleanor R. Mills is presented exclusively today by the American.

In the letter, [illegible] she called him "babykins." In [illegible] referred to Mrs. Mills as his "own true mother." He wrote:

"My own true, dear, loyal and wonderful gypsy queen—I have been off on a tramp all day—as I wrote to you this morning—so I can't get my letter off until tomorrow—but I must send a line tonight—as we have only one mail a day & it comes early in the [illegible] I sense you have been with me all day—& I am looking & [illegible] for your Sunday letter words will ever [illegible] so I shall look for a treasure gypsy letter at Seal Harbor either tomorrow or next day. Your letters are heaven dear, just what I want, crave, need—but I am piggy & want one every moment.

"Your letters have been wonderful—the Wonderful as you are, dear heart. If you have a different plan in mind for the Friday I get back to N. E. let me know it—perhaps it would be better to wait at our road on Friday afternoon—than at 49—what do you think?

Love Is Growing

"But to see you anyway, to hold you, crush you, & and pour my burning kisses on your dear body and to look deep, deep into those wonder-eyes of love & and just drink of the most wonderful thing in life—our love. Why, so completely yours—dear heart—storm [illegible] & [illegible] strength to be [illegible] & [illegible] & and [illegible] & peace of [illegible] & and the depth, wonder, and mystery of these refreshing, glittering eyes about me. Holiness, [illegible] dream—[illegible] of the universe & [illegible] & [illegible] & [illegible]

HURL GIRL FROM AUTO AFTER ATTACK

Lewiston, Me., Oct. 18—Mary Lynch, sixteen years old, Roxbury, Mass., girl, was found lying by the roadside on the outskirts of the city, unconscious, following a wild auto ride that culminated in an attack.

Passing motorists took the girl to the police station, where she was given medical treatment and revived.

She told the officers that she and a girl named Ida Butler were walking along the street here when two men, strangers, drove up in an auto and asked them to go for a ride. They accepted, she said, and the four started out into the country.

When the car reached a lonely section of Hogan road the driver stopped and each girl was subjected to fierce attacks from her partner. Miss Lynch said that she screamed and fought until her clothing was torn and she was thrown from the car.

When she had been thrown out, she said, the car drove away and she lost consciousness. She does not know what happened to the other girl. The police have been unable to find any trace of the men.

DE PALMA FINED AND JAILED FOR SPEEDING

Fresno, Calif., Oct. 18—Ralph De Palma, veteran auto race driver was sentenced to ten days in jail and fined $100 by a justice in Chowchilla, Madera County, when De Palma pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding. Officers declared De Palma was traveling seventy miles an hour.

PUNCHO PANCHO VILLA OUT TO WIN BANTAM CROWN

FILIPINO IS WONDER CHAMPION OF RING

By JACK CONWAY.

Puncho Pancho Villa!

Or hundred and fourteen pounds of fighting bone and flesh!

Also the world's flyweight champion and contender for the world's bantamweight championship!

This is the young man who has put the Philippine Islands more in the news than it has been since the day Admiral Dewey and the American fleet sailed into Manila Bay under a rain of shot and shell from the Spanish fortresses. For young Villa is a Filipino. And he has apparently absorbed the same fighting spirit that enabled our American sailors and soldiers to wrest the Philippine Islands from the control of Spain.

A Philippine champion is something new in the boxing game. A few years ago American fistic fans considered that the boxers in this country had a monopoly on all kinds of world's titles. Then came the mighty surge of Georges Carpentier for Dempsey's crown and Jimmy Wilde's bid for international fame.

...conter fell down in his big effort. Gorgeous Georges was ... out in four rounds by "Tiger Jack" at Jersey City.

...y Wilde was beaten in a fare-the-well by Jack Sharkey at ... Later Pete Herman knocked out the little Welshman at ...

Churchill, former Boston ... suggested the idea of bringing ... here. He felt that his spectacular style of fighting made such a tremendous hit with critics and fans alike that Puncho Pancho was ... elected to battle Johnny Buff for the world's flyweight title.

Danny Edwards.

Buff had weight and experience on Villa. He was also battling in his own home sector.

But Villa is a fighter. For eleven rounds he hurled himself at the American. He hit him with every imaginable kind of a punch. Buff broke and faltered under the fierce onslaught. He stumbled and crumbled as Puncho Pancho kept up his wild attack.

And in the eleventh round Buff went down in defeat.

The little Philippine boy was then proclaimed world's flyweight champion.

Is he satisfied to rest on his new won laurels?

Hardly.

Villa now would be bantamweight as well as flyweight champion.

Buff once held both titles.

"Why not me also?" asks Villa.

If he wins over Danny Edwards, colored bantamweight champion, at the Boston Arena next Monday night, Villa will demand a tussle with Joe Lynch.

Puncho Pancho wants to bring all the title-mo[illegible] Fans with him when he returns to the Philippines.

TUFTS WORKING FOR HARDER ATTACK

In preparation for the Norwich game Coach Eddie Casey is working overtime to get a stronger Tufts attack. He believes that the best defense is a strong offensive which will hold possession of the ball. New formations are taught with especial emphasis on forward pass plays.

Carl Fleiman was out in togs and Dr. MacLane promises to have him in shape for Saturday. Carl's return will do much to bolster up the Brown and Blue offensive strength as he was looked upon as the best open field runner on the squad. Although small he is stocky and strong and an exceedingly hard runner to down.

It is probable that Casey will send Fleiman to halback and retain Ennis Martin as quarterback. Martin showed very well as a field general in the Williams game and Fleiman prefers to see a running back with no responsibility to hamper his work.

Chandler, who was slightly injured in the game at Williamstown, will be in shape by Saturday, as will Eddie Cook. Cook has had his knee in a plaster cast for ten days, but appeared at practice and went through light exercises.

The [illegible] is strengthened by the presence of Jeri Medina Seldom it is that one college has such a trio of wingmen that believe in the line but we suspect favorable with any in New England that in the backfield the Brown and Blue never got solid power.

Tufts supporters are eloquent in their praise of what the coaching staff has already accomplished and expect that in another year Tufts grid teams will rank with the elevens of 1915 and 1916.

As a result of the three successive victories enthusiasm is at fever heat at the Medford college and the student body can see only an unbroken string of victories for the rest of the season.

WINTHROP SHUTS OUT WATERTOWN ELEVEN

Winthrop won its opening Greater Boston Interscholastic Girls Field Hockey League game, and shut out Watertown High, 3 to 0, at Ingleside park, Winthrop Centre. It was Watertown's first appearance in the league.

Downey Demands Bout With Wilson in Boston

Bryan Downey.

Bryan Downey, conqueror of Nate Siegal in a most decisive manner at the Boston Arena, says the only reason he took the Siegal match was to force Johnny Wilson to defend his title as world's middleweight champion in a Boston ring.

"I knocked Wilson out at Columbus, Ohio," said Downey after the Siegal bout. "I knocked him through the ropes when we battled at Jersey City," continued Downey. "This smash went over in the first round. From then on Wilson went on the defensive and absolutely refused to do any real fighting, with the result that his money was held up for some time.

"Boston and New England fans, who have been fed up on the propaganda that I could not fight, apparently will look at things in a different light now that I have handed Siegal the most decisive defeat of his career. I stand ready to fight Wilson in his own home city under any conditions he may name. He cannot then say he was handed an Ohio decision. What will be his answer?"

1928 OLYMPIC GAMES HERE HOPE OF YANKS

By DAVID J. WALSH

New York, Oct. 18—According to information seeping out from semi-official sources, the Olympic games of 1928 for the new Yankee Stadium, now under construction is the dream of men whose money and in future are responsible for the arena.

DETECTED AT MASS MEETING

"Shamus Burke" Recognized by Miss Kearns; Betrayed Her to British

Worcester, Oct. 18.—Irish patriots here today searched for "Shamus Burke."

He is the English convict, using that name, who helped Miss Lynda Kearns escape from Mountjoy Prison, Dublin, a year ago. Then he tried to betray her into English hands again for a $15,000 reward He was deported to this country

Miss Kearns was just starting to tell this to a packed audience in Mechanics Hall when she spied the very man, "Shamus Burke," himself, gazing up at her from the fifth row.

Amazed at the man's audacity, Miss Kearns started to expose him But she feared disorder. She held her peace then, but told the meeting committee later. Now they are looking for the man.

2,000 IN THE HALL.

Two thousand men and women were in the hall. The meeting was under direction of Worcester Coun cil, American Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic. State President John F. Harrigan presided. Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, Miss Kearns and National Organized J. J. Madden of Washington were the speakers, Miss Kearns being first

Miss Kearns had been talking about fifteen minutes on the general Irish situation Suddenly she paused abruptly She gazed intently down at persons in front. She seemed fairly staggered with surprise

She mastered herself and resumed her address, describing her escape from Mountjoy and how she nearly was recaptured by Black and Tans in a Carlow convent twenty four hours later through the betrayal of the very "Burke" who had helped her out of jail

The others on the platform wondered what was the matter. When Miss Kearns told them after the meeting the hall was being emptied and the man "Burke" had departed.

CONVICT ESCAPES.

While Miss Kearns knew that 'Burke' had been deported, she had no idea, of course, that he was in his city. Nor was his presence here known to the local council of the A. A. R. I. R.

POSITIVE OF THE MAN.

Miss Kearns said today at her hotel that there could be no mistake about "Burke." She recognized him instantly, especially by the peculiar reddish shade of his hair and by a cast in one of his eyes, as well as by his general appearance. He wore a light gray suit.

What Miss Kearns and others cannot comprehend is 'Burke's' boldness in attending the meeting and sitting so well up front, where he ran the risk of being recognized, as he was.

ARE BOSTON WOMEN ADJUSTING THE LENGTH OF THEIR SKIRTS TO THE

Contour of Their Ankles? This scheme is quite the thing, a happy compromise, out on the Pacific coast where long and sinuous skirts vie with the saucier and shorter garment. A stroll down Tremont street, for instance, reveals skirts of every conceivable length. This, according to the wiseacres, proves that Boston girlies are going to continue wearing what they think sets off their trim feet and ankles to the best advantage. The above photo was random shot on Tremont street, showing three lengths of skirts.

No family is well fed without ice

JUST as true in Autumn as in mid-summer. The food may not spoil so fast, but it spoils. Meat loses its appetizing flavor; eggs and butter deteriorate.

If food is the least bit stale, the flavor suffers and nourishment is impaired. It is on the way to becoming a menace to health.

Why run such risk when ice costs so little? A few cents a day keeps the refrigerator full and your food in prime condition.

What Has Gone Before

Sir Nicholas Thormonde, a wealthy Englishman, wounded and blinded in one eye in action, starts writing his diary in Paris while the war is still on. He is sick of life. The war has robbed it of all that a young man can find of joy. He tries to amuse himself in the company of several women friends, who, he feels, seek his company for his money and not for the love he craves. He starts to write a book and hires a typist, Miss Sharp. He falls in love with her and serves notice on the "Fluffies." She refuses to give him her address. Nicholas asks her to marry him as a business proposition.

I SUPPOSE I had better not give Miss sharp my mother's pearls until after the ceremony. I wonder if there will be a fuss when I suggest her going to the Rue de la Paix for clothes? I apprehend that there will be a stubborn resistance to almost everything I would wish to do.

How will the Duchesse take it? Probably philosophically, once it is an accomplished fact.

At that moment Burton brought me in a note from that very lady! I opened it eagerly, and its contents made me smile.

The Duchesse wrote to remind me of a request I once made her, that if a certain family were in trouble that I would assist them to any amount. Twenty-five thousand francs were now absolutely necessary on the moment; if I could send them to her by bearer, I would know that I was doing a good deed!

For the third time that day I reached for my check book and wrote a check, but for only the sum asked on this occasion, and then when Burton had brought me note paper I sent a little word with it to the Duchesse, and when I was alone again I laughed aloud.

Three people determined upon it must surely save the scapegrace! I wonder which of the three will get there first!

I would not go out anywhere to dinner. I wanted to be alone to think over the whole strange turn of fate. Do strong desires influence events? Or are all these things settled beforehand? Or is there something in reincarnation, which Alathea believes in, and the actions of one life cause that which looks like fate in the next? We shall have many talks on this subject, I hope.

I wonder how long it will take for my little love to come voluntarily into my arms—?

Saturday:

I wonder how long I shall go on writing in this Journal? I suppose once I should be happy it would not be necessary; well the moment has not yet come, in spite of my being the fiance of the woman I desire.

At ten o'clock I was waiting for her in the sitting-room, and I was thinking of that other time when I waited in anxiety, in case she did not return at all. I was very excited, but it was more the exhilaration I used to feel when we were going to have some stunning marauding expedition on No Man's Land. The old zest was in my veins.

I heard Alathea's ring, and after she had taken off her hat she came into the room. I believed that her anxieties must be assuaged because Georges Harcourt had telephoned late on Thursday night to say that he had been successful, and that he had four thousand francs to hand back to me, the affair having been concluded for twenty-six thousand. So what was my surprise to see Alathea's face below her glasses more woebegone than ever! At first it gave me a stab of pain. Does she really hate me so? She did not mention the money, so I wonder if it is that she does not yet know her father is cleared? I bowed as coldly as I used always to do, and she asked me if I had a chapter ready for her to type. I answered that I had not, because I had been too busy with other things to have composed anything.

"I think we had better discuss the necessary arrangements for our marriage before we can settle down to our old work," I said.

"Very well."

"I shall have to have your full name and your father's and mother's and all that, you know, to make it legal. My lawyer will attend to all the formalities—they are quite considerable, I believe. He arrives from London on Monday. I got him a passport by pulling a lot of strings."

She actually trembled. It seemed as if the idea of all this had not come to her, none of the value of her sacrifice would be diminished if the family skeleton should be laid bare. I could see she felt, so I reassured her.

"Believe me, I do not wish you to tell me anything about your family. As long as you can give just sufficient facts to satisfy the law, I have no curiosity to see them unless I can be of use."

"Thank you."

"I think a fortnight is the quickest that everything can be settled in. Will you marry me on the seventh of November, Miss Sharp?"

"Yes."

"Do you care for the church ceremony, or will the one at the Consulate do?"

"I should think that would be quite enough for us."

The ring cases were all lying upon the table by me. I pointed to them.

"I wonder if you would choose an engagement ring?" and I began opening the lids. "It is customary, you know." I went on as she started reluctantly. I intended to be firm with her in all the points where I had rights.

"Don't you think it is a little ridiculous?" she asked. "A ring for a mere business arrangement?"

I would not allow myself to be hurt, but I was conscious that I felt a little angry.

"You would prefer not to choose a ring, then? Very well, I will decide for you," and I took up one really magnificent single stone diamond, set as only Cartier can set stones.

"This is the last thing in modernity," and I handed it to her.

Burton's wise, old face expressed complete understanding.

"A hard white diamond of egregious size, it cannot fail to be a reminder of our hard business bargain, and I shall ask you to be good enough to wear it."

I suppose she saw that I was not pleased, for she drew in her lips a little, but she took the ring.

Her hands seemed very restless as she held it; they were certainly not nearly so red as they formerly were.

"Am I to put it on now?"

"Please."

She did so, only she put it on her right third finger; her cheeks growing pink.

"Why do you do that?" I asked.

"What?"

"Put the ring on the wrong hand?"

She changed it reluctantly, then she burst out:

"I suppose I ought to thank you for such a very splendid gift, but I can't, because I would much rather not have it. Please do let us keep to business in every way, and please don't give me any more presents. I am going to be just your secretary, with my wages commuted into some lump sum, I suppose."

I felt more angry, and I think she saw it. I remained silent, which forced her to speak.

"Do you intend that I shall live here, in the flat?"

"Of course. Will you please choose which of the two guest rooms you would prefer? They both have bathrooms, and you will have the decoration redone as you wish."

Silence.

My exasperation augmented.

"Will you also please engage a maid, and go and order every sort of clothes which you ought to have? I know by the way you were dressed when I saw you in the Ritz that Sunday that your taste is perfect."

She stiffened as I spoke. It was quite plain to be seen that she loathed taking anything from me, but I had no intention of coiling a single point where I had the right to impose my will.

"You see, you will be known as my wife, therefore you must dress according to the position and have everything my mother used to have. Otherwise people would not respect you, and only think that you were invidiously placed."

Her cheeks flamed again at the last words.

"It is difficult to picture it all," she said. "Tell me exactly what you expect of me daily."

"I expect that when you have breakfasted in your room, if you wish, that you will come and talk to me, perhaps do a little writing, or go out to drive, or what you wish, and that we shall lunch, and in the afternoon do whatever turns up. You will want to go out and see your friends and do what you please. And perhaps you will play to me as often as you feel inclined, and after dinner we can go to the theatre, or read, or do whatever you like, and as soon as my treatments with these doctors are concluded and I have my leg and eye, and we shall hope war is finished, we can travel, or go back to England, and then I shall begin taking up a political career, and I shall hope you will take a real interest in that and help me as though I were your brother."

"Very well."

"You will order the clothes today?"

"Yes."

She was subdued now. The program was not very inviting, except that it contained daily companionship with me.

"Have you told the Duchesse de Courville-Hautefeve yet that we are engaged?" I asked her after a moment's pause.

Discomfort grew in her manner.

"No."

"Do you think that she will not approve of the marriage?"

She may not."

"Perhaps you would rather that I told her?"

"As you please."

"I want you to understand something quite clearly, Alathea." She started when I said her name. "And that is that I expect you to treat me with confidence, and tell me anything which you think that I ought to know, so that we neither of us can be put in a false position. Beyond that, believe me, I have no curiosity. I desire a companionship of brain, and a sort of permanent secretary who does not feel hostile all the time, that is all."

I could see that she was controlling herself with all her will, and that she was over-wrought and intensely troubled. I knew that some barrier was between us which I could not at present surmount. All she said after a minute was:

"How did you know that my name was 'Alathea'?"

"I heard your little sister call you that the day I saw you in the Ride. I think it a very beautiful name."

Silence.

Her discomfort seemed to come to a climax, for after a little she spoke.

"The twenty-five thousand francs beyond the twenty-five I asked you for, I cannot return to you. I feel very much about it, and that you should pay for my clothes, and give me presents. It is the hardest thing I ever had to do in my life—to take all this."

"Do not let it bother you. I am quite content with the bargain. Perhaps you would rather go now after we have selected which room you will have."

"Thank you."

She gave me my crutch, and I led the way and she followed. I knew instinctively that she would choose the room which was furthest from mine. She did!

"This will do," she said immediately we entered it.

"The look-out is not so nice, it only gets the early morning sun." I ventured to remark.

"It is quieter."

"Very well."

"It was rather arranged for a man, and is perhaps severe. Do you wish anything changed?"

She did not appear to take any more interest in it than if it had been a hotel room. She had given it the merest glance, although it is quite a little masterpiece in its way, of William and Mary—even the panelling being English, and of the time, and the old rose silk window and bed curtains.

"I don't want anything, thank you."

It seemed a strange moment, to be talking thus calmly to the woman who, in a fortnight, will be my wife. I feel that a volcano is really working under our feet, and that adds to the excitement!

When we got back to the sitting room I offered to send the carriage for her to go and do her shopping, but she refused, and I thought it was wiser to let her go. We shall have years to talk in presently, and there is always the danger of our coming to an open rupture, and the bargain being off, if we see much of one another now.

"Good-bye," she said a little nervously, and I bowed and said "Good-bye," and she went from the room.

And when she had gone I laughed aloud, and began to analyze the situation.

George Harcourt has paid the gambling debt, therefore the fifty thousand I gave Alathea cannot have been used for that. Some fresh worry is perhaps upon the wretched family. The obvious thing for me to do is to go and see the Duchesse, and yet I have some strange sort of wish that it should be Alathea herself who tells me everything and not that she becomes aware by inference, that I must know. I feel that our future happiness depends upon her giving up all this stubborn pride.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

Few opportunities? Think of this:

Of the twenty largest railroads in America, nineteen have new presidents, as compared with seventeen years ago.

Even in the last seven years, twelve railway presidencies out of the twenty have been won by new men.

* * *

The industrial field has proved equally rich in opportunity for climbers.

Of the twenty leading industrial corporations in America only one has the same president as it had in 1905, while eleven of these important presidencies have been captured within the last seven years.

* * *

In other words, of the forty leading presidential jobs in the railroad and industrial worlds, more than half have been handed over, many of the right stuff within the brief space of seven years.

And only two of the forty corporations have the same president as they had in 1905.

* * *

Do not these remarkable figures, dug up especially for this column, prove that there constantly are shoes waiting at the feet for those capable of filling them, that there's a place at the summit for the man who knows how to carve out a place for himself.

* * *

Do the figures emphasize how plentiful the opportunities arising here are in comparison with those in other leading industrial nations, such as Britain, France and Germany, where management of large enterprises is handed down from father to son and where changes are much less frequent?

How mighty little of this handing down of gigantic jobs from father there now is in America! In the olden days this custom was more or less prevalent here. It is not done today—except in the rather rare instances where a son wins his spurs through very conspicuous ability.

Take railroad presidencies in 1905. George J. Gould, son of his predecessor in office, was president of Missouri Pacific. Fairfax Harrison Could in the list today. Neither is there any Vanderbilt or Huntington or Hill or Harriman. In 1906 J. P. Morgan's influence broke the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific, but none of his sons has been pitchforked into either position.

* * *

There isn't a single individual in the presidential chair of any leading system in the United States.

Tomorrow's column will give interesting facts on that subject.

Wall St. Notes

NEW YORK CENTRAL has been acting fairly in a very confident fashion of report that it will pay 7 per cent. along with offering of $50,000,000 new stock at par.

U. S. STEEL is lacked of as in line for move of 10 to 15 points upward.

ASSOCIATED DRY GOODS is discussed for 20-point rise. Increase in common dividend, however, to 6 per cent. looks doubtful.

STANDARD OIL of New Jersey has developed a big short interest, results of which average trader will be content to miss.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC still has oil properties on its list and could start another successful distribution if directors see fit.

FREEPORT TEXAS 6,000-barrel well turns out to have been exaggerated.

J. C. PENNEY CO. sales for September showed increase of 11.48 per cent. over same month last year, but for year to date a decrease of 12.93 against same period in 1921.

McCLINTIC MARSHALL CO. has been awarded contract of Pennsylvania Railroad for erection of new machine shop and erecting works at Juniata.

TILDWIN, at 60 per cent. capacity, in addition to 30 Mikado engines ordered several weeks ago, has received additional order from Erie for 10 Mikados and 20 Pacific type engines.

BELIEF THAT success of Continental Motors Co.'s new financing means dividend resumption accounts for recent rise in common shares from 37 to above 310.

AMERICAN CAN CO.'s business in eight months of 1922 was, conservatively stated, 25 per cent. ahead of 1921 period.

CHARLES W. RICH, former vice-president of New York National City Bank, was elected to board of Continental Can at special directors' meeting.

PRINCE & WHITELY—Railroad stocks are much behind the rest of the market, and increasing strength and activity may be looked for in this department.

J. S. BACHE & CO.—The current attitude should be one of caution, with any buying inclinations devoted principally to the rails.

F. B. KEECH & CO.—We look for a sporty irregular market for the present.

LIVINGSTON & CO.—The high-grade rails remain in a consistently strong position.

MEX PETE GETS SETBACK AFTER OPENING UP

National Biscuit was the dominant feature of initial trading today on the New York Stock Exchange, lifting seventeen points or 24% to a new high on stock dividend rumors. It then sacrificed about half its gain. Money renewed at 5 per cent.

Mexican Pete, which lifted spectacularly more than 22 points Tuesday, rose 1¾ at the opening today, dropped 4 to 222, then jumped to 232, up 6 from Tuesday's close, and at a new 1922 high.

UNITED FRUIT AT HIGH.

He other Doheny oils also set fresh tops for the year, Pan American A up 9⅝ and the B stock up 2⅜ at 52¾.

United Fruit made a fresh year's top, up 5⅝ at 160⅞.

Stock prices moved upward in rapid fashion at the opening on some to broad demand for railroad, equipment and copper shares and the remarkable bullish demonstration in National Biscuit.

Standard Oil of New Jersey moved up over 5 points.

Lehigh Valley and Atlantic Coast Line led the rail group, each at gains of one point. Chile Copper, under leadership of American Smelting, moved up 2, and Utah Copper, up 1.

AMERICAN CAN UP.

American Car, up 3, was the outstanding equipment, but gains of 1 to 2½ points also were registered by Baldwin and American Locomotives, Pullman and General Electric.

New highs for the year were established by Manhattan shirt and Atlas Powder, gains ranging from 1 to nearly 4 points.

Studebaker was one of the few exceptions to the upward trend.

COTTON EXCHANGE RECEIVERS NAMED

New York Supreme Court Justice Wagner has appointed Hudson Trust Company and Edgar Snyder, Fifth avenue, receivers of all property, credits and assets of American Cotton Exchange and Cotton Reporter Co. Receivers were appointed as result of suit instituted by James S. Meng and August M. Graham on behalf of themselves and other creditors.

ENAMELING STARTS ITS $1,500,000 MILL

Ground has been broken for the new $1,500,000 sheet steel plant of Enameling & Stamping Co., at Granite City, Ill. Plant should be ready for operation by July, 1923.

New plant is next to the St. Lou's Coke & Chemical Co., a subsidiary of National Enameling. The plant will consist of six sheets mills and one jobbing mill.

DEMAND STERLING IS SMARTLY UP

Demand sterling rose smartly, up 1.7-16 at $4.46¾, while other foreign exchanges were weaker. Demands were: French francs, 746½; lire, 422¾; marks, .0037 1-16; Belgian francs, 695½; drachmas, 248; Swiss francs, 1843; guilders, 3902; pesetas, 1525; Sweden kroners, 2674; Norway, 1806; Denmark, 2008.

VACUUM OIL IS UP 12 ON N. Y. CURB

Curb market in New York today was irregular. Vacuum Oil, on which 300 per cent. dividend is promised, was up 12 points at 650. Standard Oil of New York lost two points at 350. Standard Oil of Indiana was up ⅛ at 125⅝; International Pete, off ¼ at 23; Schulte, up 1 at 48.

BIG CHINESE LOAN IS TO BE FLOATED

Agreement has been made between the city of Canton, China, and Anglo-American bankers for a loan of $2,000,000 to be issued at 87½ and bearing interest at 7½ per cent. Money for development of telephone, water works and tramways.

PUNTA ALEGRE SUGAR HAS GOOD SHOWING

Punta Alegre Sugar Company has issued report for fiscal year to May 31. It shows addition to surplus of $256,131 as against a reduction of $447,756 in previous year.

MEXICAN SEABOARD GETS 13,000 BARRELS

In twenty-four hours ended 7 a. m. Oct. 17, Toteco pool produced 70,000 barrels of oil, Mexican Petroleum getting 25,000, Mexican Oil 32,000 and Mexican Seaboard 13,000.

Iusures Curb Members

New York Curb Market has established a gratuity fund through which regular members will be insured for $5000.

Boston Notes

GENERAL confidence in brokerage circles that bull market of months to run appears justified by all the trade straws.

SECRETARY F. J. McNAMARA of Seneca Copper states the company has cash of $450,000 and that mine is developing in a satisfactory manner.

SUPERIOR & BOSTON's rise was based on striking of rich new ore.

DAVIS-DALY and Anaconda parley over apex rights at Butte looks still far from settlement. Davis-Daly to date has been little affected by market-wide depression as stockholders have felt outcome would be profitable.

FALL RIVER will receive bids until 10:30 a. m., October 19, for $50,000 four per cent. bonds dated Oct. 1, 1909 from October 1, 1923 to 1927, inclusive.

WALDORF'S strength is largely due to satisfactory earnings, indicating best year in company's history.

INTERNATIONAL PAPER is very generally looked on as a good buy.

TIMKEN ROLLER BEARING to declare regular quarterly dividend of everything claimed for it by its market sponsors.

ATCHISON is still a feature of bullish buying.

ANACONDA, Utah, Chile, Butte & Superior smelters and Kennecott all came in for the copper rally, which many think is the start of a real upswing.

SPRINGFIELD will receive proposals until noon, October 25, for $850,000 4 per cent. coupon bridge, sewer and street bonds, dated October 1st with interest payable each of years 1923 to 1952, inclusive.

PORTLAND, Me., will receive bids until noon, October 25, for $700,000 4½ per cent. high school bonds, dated November 1, 1922 and payable serially 1927 to 1940 inclusive.

PRESIDENT STOREY of Atchison states road spent $48,351,076 for improvements in 1922 up to September.

HORNBLOWER & WEEKS—Inasmuch as the irregular reaction we had expected came on time, we have no reason to doubt that of our program will be fulfilled. This calls for new highs today throughout market.

FRUIT FEATURE OF TRADING IN BOSTON

United Fruit was the outstanding feature of transactions today on the Boston Stock Exchange. It was up 7¼ at 161½, a new record high, after opening up 3 points at 157.

Superior & Boston, low-priced copper, put rose Tuesday to 1¾ from Monday's close of $1 flat, hit 1⅞ previous year's high. Strike of rich copper vein caused uplift.

There were point gains in Mergenthaler, Orpheum and Boston & Maine, Class A.

Boston & Maine, Class C, lifted 2 points, and the Class D 2½.

Boston & Maine and New Haven sold fractionally lower.

Most active on the Boston Curb were Gold Road, off 4 at 35, and Crystal, off 1-16 at 1¾.

United Verde Extension was up 1⅛ at 29⅝; Ruby, 3 at 28, and Boston Ely, 10 at 85. Jerome Verde Development was off ⅝ at 2⅛.

REAL ESTATE HAPPENINGS

The tract of undeveloped land, known as the Locke property, fronting on Massachusetts avenue, between Bartrett avenue and Menotomy Rocks Park, has been purchased by Horatio A. Phinney and William A. Muller, in behalf of a group of Arlington men, from Emma L. Sprague.

This tract, consisting of 9,000,000 square feet, is one of the most desirable vacant plots in Arlington. For many years it had been sought by investors, but the owners were unwilling to sell.

Recently Mrs. Sprague, who is the daughter of the late Henry J. Locke, decided to dispose of her property. Mr. Thomas J. Robinson, the town clerk in Arlington, hearing of the proposed sale of the property, and of a possible development not desirable in the locality, and opportunity offered, called a meeting of twenty-eight citizens interested in the best development of the town. As a result, the tract was bought. The property is assessed for $98,500. Engineers are now at work, and as an early date plans will be published showing subdivision of the land for a high-class restricted residential section. The Lockeland Real Estate Trust will have control of the property and the first purchase of lots.

JAMAICA PLAIN SALE

Mrs. Amelia Paillace, wife of Dr. Gaetano Paillace, has sold to Vincenzo and Stella Strano, for occupancy and investment, the property No. 81 South Huntington avenue, corner of Craft street and Jamaicaway, overlooking the grounds of the Boston School of Physical Education. The property comprises about 7,000 square feet, and a three-story modern stone, iron and stucco building for three families, Joseph Balch, of the Columbian Life Building, was the broker.

BUYS IN REVERE STREET

Title to property at No. 166 Revere street has been conveyed by the estate of Ellen C. Devlin to Abram Furman. The lot of land contains 700 feet, assessed for $3,700, on which is a three and one-half story brick building. The total assessment is $7,600. After making improvements the new owner will occupy part of the premises. Street & Company were the brokers.

John Forgit transfers to Martha Williams the property at No. 3029 Washington street, Roxbury, consisting of a two building on 4,760 feet of land, all taxed on $5,600. The estate is between Walnut Park and Westminster avenue.

Railroads Need Every Man

Governor Cox Should Call Conference of New England Executives to Settle Shopmen's Strike

Henry Abrahams, president of the Boston Central Labor Union, asked Governor Cox to call a conference of the Governors in New England for the purpose of causing a settlement of the shopmen's strike.

We presume that this settlement is asked upon the basis of the settlement by the railroads outside of New England.

We hope that the Governor will find his way clear to grant this request. The pretense that the New England railroads do not need the striking shopmen is pretty flimsy. Why are we not getting more coal? It is due largely to the rundown condition of the freight equipment of our roads.

The railroads need every man they can get who is capable of repairing a freight c 3.

Let us understand perfectly that it is not the scarcity of coal at the coal mines, but the scarcity of cars and engines on our railroads which will cause us trouble if we have trouble from the scarcity of coal this Winter, and if New England suffers through the truculence of the private managers of our New England railroads, we shall know it.

Gold, Gold, Yellow and Cold

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

The United States has piled up almost four thousand millions in gold coin and gold bars. We are the gold owners of the world. But four thousand millions gold are locked up doing nothing, earning no interest, whereas they might pay off four billions of government debts and save the people two hundred millions yearly in interest. However, that is how finance is managed. You must know a great deal to be sure that there is any better plan.

Europe says to us, "You have all the gold," envies us and admits it, yet the allies foolishly imagined that they could get from Germany thirty-five thousand millions in gold, nine times our great "hoard," more than ten times the largest amount that Germany ever had.

Germany was forced to go out and buy gold with paper money as long as she could, and now her paper money is worthless.

Nobody really understands finance. It is a game of follow your leader. You remember that the wisest bankers in the United States said the Federal Reserve plan would mean ruin. Now they all admit that without it the nation would have had a succession of black panics.

Our Russian Chances

Thrown Away Foolishly

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

More famine threatens in Russia. Seven millions are in danger. The jewelry taken from churches proved to be largely imitation and did not supply much money for food. The Crown jewels will go next. Many millions are invested there, but they won't bring their value.

Instead of buying jewelry, if that money had been invested and reinvested wisely, PLUS INTEREST, there would be enough now to feed everybody in Russia, ten times over.

Before long, however, Russia will have food enough, for her government appears to be stable, and whatever they produce IN RUSSIA IS KEPT IN RUSSIA. The Grand Dukes no longer spend it at the Monte Carlo gambling tables, or in thievish, dishonest contracts abroad.

Cal O'Loughlin, a good observer just back from Russia, can tell President Harding, if he has time to listen, some interesting things about the opportunities this country is losing in the way of trade by letting France, England and Germany go in ahead of us.

The Automatic Phone

Once It Would Have Frightened Worker

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

The automatic telephone is working in one of the biggest "Central" offices of New York city. This means temporarily, as the automatic spreads through great cities, a lack of work for those now replaced by a marvellously ingenious machine.

Once upon a time the workers would have united to smash that machine, as they did in England, when it was necessary to build forts around the spinning and weaving machinery.

That "labor-saving" machinery later increased the number of workers one hundredfold and greatly increased their pay. But they could not imagine that. Workers of today are more intelligent—a little.

Bumper Cranberry Crop

The cranberry crop is said to be very large in New England this year. It is good news. New England loves her cranberries next to her pork and beans. New England leads the world in cranberry culture.

If you should go down the beautiful Cape Cod highway, leading from the canal to Provincetown, which some foolish persons have taken the trouble to placard as the "King's Highway," you will see somewhere beyond Barnstable a big sign, we think it is in the town of Dennis, telling you that it was a citizen of Dennis years ago who put Massachusetts on the map as a cranberry-growing State by discovering that if you throw a little sand over the cranberry plants you help to grow them. This is very easy to do on Cape Cod, and so cranberries and asparagus have made the Cape famous.

Cole and Logan

While it is true that the names of General Cole and General Logan of Massachusetts are not to be presented to the National Convention of the American Legion, yet it is a matter of pride to our people that we have two men who stand so well with the men who fought the war that they come within considering distance of the Presidency.

That itself speaks well for the quality of Massachusetts' leadership.

Whoever is selected, we have no doubt, will press the soldiers' bonus, and press it hard and successfully upon the Republican Congress in control of the Wall Street crowd.

Getting the Boss' Job

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

"YOU can get your boss's job," said a lecturer the other evening, addressing a large and enthusiastic sales force.

And forthwith he proceeded to show them how, by giving them a lecture on Platonic Idealism—with illustrations by the audience.

A dissertation on Platonic Idealism, before a crowd of mere business men, is "going some!"

The rapt attention and the spontaneous, enthusiastic response indicated that the speaker put his thought "across" to his practically-minded hearers.

He asked them to accompany him on a little journey of 2,300 years, back to the Greece of the Golden Age, for an introduction to the founder of much of the so-called "new thought" of our day.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said he, "meet Plato."

And then he told them the essence of Plato's teaching, which asserts the Supremacy of Mind.

There are two aspects to man's conscious life—the noumenal and the phenomenal, two Greek words meaning respectively: that which is in the mind and that which appears.

"Everything exists in the mind, according to Plato, before it becomes "real" to experience and the senses.

What is thus first complete to the mind is the idea or the ideal, which—in the Greek meaning of those words—is the Vision, the Image, the Picture, which is later to become outwardly manifest in Act and in Fact.

And so, patient reader, that daring lecturer—with faith in his hearers as in YOU—got his listeners an easily intelligible basis in idealistic philosophy for their brass-tack interests and their concrete purposes.

If those eager and ambitious salesfolks wanted to get their boss's job away from him their first need was to see it as clearly as he did. They must get the Perfect Picture of it in their minds.

And then they must bring to it all their Intelligence, Concentration, Consecration, Effort.

Merely "seeing things" is not enough. After you have, within you, the Idea—comes the big task of manifesting it outside of you. One hundred per cent. Idea plus one hundred per cent. Performance will win you any job you want.

The boss will be glad to hand it over to you and become your office boy.

Why Not Bachelors?

Editor Boston American:

I think the patriotic dames are making a great mistake in proposing a bachelor tax to force them to marry. There are many valuable old maids and it would be doing the State a great injustice to deprive it of them.

The so-called old maids are more important than the bachelor, so why not put a tax of $25 a year on every man that marries one of them?

Slate for Coal

Editor Boston American:

I think it about time to call a halt to the practice of the coal dealers selling to the poor public slate, which is called coal. I for one cannot see any difference between them and holdup men. I have begged my coal dealer to please let me have a little coal, and was told by the bookkeeper she had my address and I could not have one lump until they were ready to give it. I am far from well, and obliged to have an oil stove which makes me far worse.

Bankers' Duplicity

Editor Boston American:

After reading Mr. Lamont's speech at the Bankers' Convention recently, I had wondered what paper would expose the duplicity which was behind the whole thing, and as usual the Boston American took the lead. This ought to open the eyes of the American Legion and veterans in general as it shows that while the big bankers were opposed to the soldiers' bonus, claiming the country was in no financial condition to pay it, they are perfectly willing to cancel the debts which European countries owe us. Their only purpose in doing this is a selfish one.

100 Per Cent. Americans

Editor Boston American:

I understand the K. K. K. opens its meetings with prayer and claims to be 100 per cent. American and Protestant Christians. Now, as a Protestant Christian myself and with the knowledge gleaned from the teachings of the Congregational church, I cannot understand how any Christian, either Protestant or Catholic, who has any knowledge of the teachings of Christ and is truly sincere, can hate or try to hurt any or one of God's creatures.

In regard to 100 per cent. Americans, how can any one be 100 per cent. American who willfully disobeys the Constitution of the United States of America, which gives religious freedom to all.

Blankets and Quilts

Editor Boston American:

I have a rug and some children's clothing. I would like to dispose of them to Mrs. G. T. I would like to hear from her, as I know she would like them.

MRS. G. G.

Editor Boston American:

Mrs. E. F. asked for pieces of blankets. As I have a quilt and single blankets would be glad to send them to her if I knew her address.

Unselfish Love Cannot Lose

By Winifred Black

"THE worst thing about it," said the woman with the cheerful smile and the sad eyes, "was that I was afraid I'd stopped caring for him, and I knew if I did that the whole thing was gone—youth, hope, trust, happiness—everything!

"So I used to pray—oh, yes I did, regular old-fashioned prayer!—and I always prayed to be helped to keep on loving him; that's all that kept me alive—and him, too.

"It was hard sometimes, awfully hard. He was so sweet and good-humored, and kindly, and clever, when he was himself. But when he wasn't himself he was mean and stingy, and jealous and faultfinding, and quarrelsome—and, oh, so unalterably silly!

"That was the worst of it—the silliness.

"It's awfully hard to love a man when he makes you ashamed of him, and I was ashamed of Jack more than half the time.

"Besides, it's awfully dangerous to be ashamed of a man, or to have to apologize for him, or make excuses for him. It hurts his vanity and makes his conceit suffer, and when you hurt a man's self-esteem you kill the only thing that keeps him alive.

"So I managed and pretended, and comforted myself and praised Jack and quoted his old letters and passages from his book, and pulled him back, back, back up out of the slime and the mud, and for five years before he died he was the real Jack again and I didn't have to work day and night to keep on loving him.

"See, here's the boy—Jack's boy and mine—he's a college now; captain of the football team, smart as a whip, good as gold and worships the memory of his father.

"Here's the girl—this one in the oval frame. She's visiting her aunt now, but she's coming home in time to go to the junior prom with her brother. He says she'll be the prettiest girl there, [illegible].

"Sweet? She's as sweet as a whole bunch of sweet peas and as bright as she can be! Doesn't she look exactly like Jack?

"I'm so glad I had the courage and the faith to keep on loving him. Don't you think it was worth it?"

And I looked at the two photographs and at the proud mother, and I noticed her and eyes and her cheerful smile, and I said:

"Yes, I guess it was."

SEEN AND HEARD

MRS. EMMA TUCKER of Marcy street, Portsmouth, N. H., has what is undoubtedly the world's largest collection of tobacco tags, representing more than 6,000 varieties, all neatly framed and in hundreds of instances not to be duplicated. The work of collecting has extended over many years.

"That's carrying government economy a lot too far," commented a Milk street business man, peering upward. "What is?" asked his companion. "Why, flying the American flag full of holes and in ribbons from the Federal Building."

NOAH PERRY popular Boston referee, is to the boxing game what SAM SMITH is to the mat game. Both men officiate in a fearless nonpartisan manner and both fans and contestants are assured a square deal when Perry or Smith is the third man in the ring.

There are 600 mentally defective boys at the Feeble Minded School at Waverly. Many of these can be trained to lead a useful life according to MISS MABEL A. MATTHEWS, social worker at Waverly. One of the best signs that they are getting into a sane afmosphere, is the desire to have bank accounts.

On a fruit stand on Dorchester avenue in Ashmont, are rows of brown paper bags. At first glance, it seemed as if the tags said oats. On closer observation, one could read: "25-lb. bags of nut coal." Nut coal may be a very appropriate kind of coal to sell at a fruit stand, but that the scarcity of fuel should bring about the sale of coal at a fruit stand seems hard to believe.

Spring has returned to Wellesley, several people have been picking violets. Today six roses were seen in bloom on the bushes around the railroad station.

Appearance of autos made us distinguish by referring to horse-drawn vehicles; the gradual disappearance of equines now gives us the expression, "vehicle-drawn horses." This was shown in a typical example when an auto truck owned by F. P. FAY of Weymouth passed along Washington street with a baker's dozen of fine-looking horses aboard.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON EDUCATION

By Garrett P. Serviss

"I have noticed that mothers who have children going to school seem to think a great many useless studies are being taught. For instance, in teaching children biology they begin by tearing bugs apart. The average mother as well as the children consider this a lot of nonsense. Mothers seem to think that children ought to be taught only what they could use in earning a living. I am not speaking of college women. Won't you write on this subject?—L. L. B., Rochester, N. Y."

THE essentials of education do not change in their nature, but only in some of their details. Leaving untouched the moral aspect of the subject, some of these essentials are:

(1) A general development of the mental powers, which includes a training in the proper use of the senses. The child should be taught, more by example than by precept, how to interpret what he sees, hears, etc. Most of such teaching is incidental to formal studies.

(2) A sound grounding in the use of his native language, spoken, written and printed. This does not necessarily include drilling in grammar, but rather practice in accurate use of the language.

(3) An equally sound grounding in the use of arithmetic, elementary geometry and algebra. Arithmetic is, of course, indispensable, but the others should not be omitted in a good elementary school education. The question of the higher mathematical branches, as in the case of foreign and ancient languages, should be left for later decision, and such studies should not be pressed upon unwilling or unreceptive young minds.

(4) A certain amount of elementary physiology and anatomy should be taught to young people as early as they can easily comprehend it. Biology, the science of life in general, should be presented in the simplest terms. Whether "tearing bugs apart" is the most useful and effective way of giving youthful pupils an elementary acquaintance with this science I do not know, but it shows a sad lack of comprehension to apply a burlesque phrase like that to a properly conducted scientific operation intended to teach knowledge by actual observation.

(5) There should be sufficient geography to give the pupil a general knowledge of the face of the earth, and of nations, races and peoples. With this should go a little elementary geology and astronomy.

(6) The last subject that I shall mention is history—world history, with some, but not exaggerated, stress put upon the history of our own country. Above all things, texts and teachers should interpret American history in accordance with American ideals and institutions, and not in a manner to please, placate or flatter foreigners.

Finally, as to children being taught only what they can use in earning a living, if a living is to be understood according to the notions of a South Sea Islander, none of the things above mentioned as essential would be of any use. But simply because they are essential in our civilization they imply and require something more, and of themselves may give rise to something more, independent of the schools.

—Says Medbury—

A Firm Is Advertising a Washing Machine That Will Outlast Three Wives

Several firms are busy demonstrating new washing machines for the Winter. One company is advertising a model that will outlast three wives.

But this is nothing to brag about at the rate men are getting divorced and married again.

These firms have so much confidence in their machines that they let you bring your laundry work down to the store and they do the washing for you.

After they get your clothes clean all you have to do is to go to some store that is demonstrating an ironing machine and let them do the flat work.

The only expense you're put to is buying the clothes in the first place.

New York city has thousands of these washing machines on demonstration, and one guy from the Bronx hasn't paid a laundry bill in two years.

Of course, when he goes back to the same place he wears a set of false whiskers. The whiskery coat him 75 cents or a dollar, but that's cheaper than the price of a week's wash.

One woman has made a lot of money by gathering the neighbors' soiled clothes and then taking them downtown and having them washed.

She calls herself a "hand laundry." She hands the soiled clothes to the demonstrator and he hands them back to her clean.

Another woman said she wouldn't have a washing machine in her home because her husband would make her take in washing to pay for it.

She had one once, but her husband was so cheap he took the motor out of it and had a crank put on it.

Another dame who bought a machine said it might be all right for washing clothes, but when she put her little boy in it he came out all black and blue.

These machines are wonderful and you have nothing to worry about on Monday. The only time you have to worry is on Tuesday, when the instalment collector comes around for the payment.

Hundreds of people pay for these machines on time, but most of them are three or four months in arrears.

These machines all have different names, but one firm calls theirs the "Belshevik" because it uses very little soap.

One woman went to a demonstrator and asked him to wash her little handkerchief. It took him three hours. One minute to wash it and two hours and fifty-nine minutes to find it afterward.

There should be one of these laundry appliances in every home, but a lot of men think it's foolish to spend $175 for a washing machine when they can go into a matrimonial agency and get one for five bucks.
